Archaeology of the Southwest Maxine E. McBrinn, Linda S. Cordell, 2016-06-16 The long-awaited third edition of this well-known textbook continues to be the go-to text and reference for anyone interested in Southwest archaeology. It provides a comprehensive summary of the major themes and topics central to modern interpretation and practice. More concise, accessible, and student-friendly, the Third Edition offers students the latest in current research, debates, and topical syntheses, as well as increased coverage of Paleoindian and Archaic periods and the Casas Grandes phenomenon. It remains the perfect text for courses on Southwest archaeology at the advanced undergraduate and graduate levels and is an ideal resource book for the Southwest researchers' bookshelf and for interested general readers.

The Social Construction of Communities Mark D. Varien, James M. Potter, 2008-08-15 The Social Construction of Communities draws on archaeological research in the Southwest to examine how communities are created through social interaction. The archaeological record of the Southwest is important for its precise dating, exceptional preservation, large number of sites, and length of occupation, making it the most intensively researched archaeological region in the world. Taking advantage of that rich archaeological record, the contributors to this volume present case studies of the Mesa Verde, Rio Grande, Kayenta, Mogollon, and Hohokam regions. The result is an enhanced understanding of the ancient Southwest, a new appreciation for the ways in which humans construct communities and transform society, and an expanded theoretical discussion of the foundational concepts of modern social theory.

Ancient Households of the Americas John G. Douglass, Nancy Gonlin, 2012-04-15 In Ancient Households of the Americas, archaeologists investigate the fundamental role of household production in ancient colonial and contemporary households. Several different cultures—Iroquois, Coosa, Anasazi, Hohokam, San Agustín, Wankarani, Formative Gulf Coast Mexico, and Formative Classic Colonial and contemporary Maya—are analyzed through the lens of household archaeology in concrete data-driven case studies. The text is divided into three sections: Section I examines the spatial and social organization and context of household production; Section II looks at the role and results of households as primary producers; and Section III investigates the role of and interplay among households in their greater political and socioeconomic communities. In the past few decades, household archaeology has made substantial contributions to our understanding and explanation of the past through the documentation of the household as a social unit, whether small or large, rural or urban, commoner or elite. These case studies from a broad swath of the Americas make Ancient Households of the Americas extremely valuable for continuing the comparative interdisciplinary study of households The Routledge Handbook of the Bioarchaeology of Human Conflict Christopher Knüsel, Martin Smith, 2013-12-17 If human burials were our only window onto the past what story would they tell Skeletal injuries constitute the most direct and unambiguous evidence for violence in the past Whereas weapons or defenses may simply be statements of prestige or status and written sources are characteristically biased and incomplete human remains offer clear and unequivocal evidence of physical aggression reaching as far back as we have burials to examine Warfare is often described as senseless and as having no place in society Consequently its place in social relations and societal change remains obscure The studies in The Routledge Handbook of the Bioarchaeology of Human Conflict present an overview of the nature and development of human conflict from prehistory to recent times as evidenced by the remains of past people themselves in order to explore the social contexts in which such injuries were inflicted A broadly chronological approach is taken from prehistory through to recent conflicts however this book is not simply a catalogue of injuries illustrating weapon development or a narrative detailing progress in warfare but rather provides a framework in which to explore both continuity and change based on a range of important themes which hold continuing relevance throughout human development The Poetics of Processing Anna J. Osterholtz, 2020-12-01 In 2002 Neil Whitehead published Dark Shamans Kanaïm and the Poetics of Violent Death in which he applied the concept of poetics to the study of violence and observed the power of violence in the creation and expression of identity and social relationships The Poetics of Processing applies Whitehead's theory on violence to mortuary and skeletal assemblages in the Andes Mexico the US Southwest Jordan Ethiopia Egypt and Turkey examining the complex cultural meanings of the manipulation of remains after death The contributors interpret postmortem treatment of the physical body through a poetics lens examining body processing as a mechanism for the re-creation of cosmological events and processing's role in the creation of social memory They analyze methods of processing and the ways in which the living use the physical body to stratify society and gain power as evidenced in rituals of body preparation and burial around the world objects buried with the dead and the hierarchies of tomb occupancy the dissection of cadavers by medical students the appropriation of living spaces once occupied by the dead and the varying treatments of the remains of social outsiders prisoners of war and executed persons The Poetics of Processing combines social theory and bioarchaeology to examine how the living manipulate the bodies of the dead for social purposes These case studies ranging from prehistoric to historic and modern and from around the globe explore this complex material relationship that does not cease with physical death This volume will be of interest to mortuary archaeologists bioarchaeologists and cultural anthropologists Contributors Dil Singh Basanti Roselyn Campbell Carlina de la Cova Eric Haanstad Scott Haddow Christina Hodge Christopher Knusel Kristin Kuckelman Clark Spencer Larsen Debra Martin Kenneth Nystrom Adrienne Offenbecker Megan Perry Marin Pilloud Beth K Scaffidi Mehmet Somel Kyle D Waller Thinking through Archaeological Complexity Stefani A. Crabtree, 2025-10-31 Thinking Through Archaeological Complexity explores how archaeologists can engage with complex adaptive systems examining dynamic interactions between humans and environments across space and through time It offers a roadmap for integrating theory method and data through a complexity science lens This volume bridges archaeology and complexity science offering a transdisciplinary framework for understanding long term socio ecological dynamics It provides a substantive overview of how complex adaptive systems science is used in archaeology Drawing from case studies in the Ancestral Pueblo Southwest it demonstrates how tools like agent based modeling ecological and social network analysis and settlement scaling reveal emergent patterns in the archaeological record The book critically examines concepts such as resilience adaptation innovation and transformation offering alternatives to overly linear narratives Emphasizing methodological transparency it provides practical guidance for scholars interested in modeling data integration and working across disciplinary boundaries while grounding in theoretical pluralism By situating archaeological knowledge within broader scientific conversations the book encourages readers to reimagine the past not as static or collapsed but as complex entangled and instructive for contemporary challenges This book is essential reading for students researchers and practitioners in archaeology as well as complexity science It will also appeal to scholars in anthropology environmental studies geography and network science interested in long term human environmental dynamics and the application of complex systems approaches in historical contexts

Becoming Villagers Matthew S. Bandy, Jake R. Fox, 2010-12-15 The shift from mobile hunting and gathering to more sedentary usually agricultural lifeways was one of the most significant milestones in the prehistory of humanity This transformation was spurred by an alignment of social and ecological forces pressures and adaptations and it took place in broadly comparable ways in many prehistoric settings Based on a Society for American Archaeology symposium and subsequent Amerind Advanced Seminar in 2006 Becoming Villagers examines this transformation at various places and times across the globe by focusing not on the origins of agriculture and village life but rather on their consequences The goal of the volume is to identify regularities in the ways that societies developed in the centuries and millennia following a transition to village life Using cases that range from China to Bolivia and from the Near East to the American Southwest leading archaeologists situate their specific areas of specialization in a broad comparative context They consider the forces acting to divide and fragment early villages and the social technologies and practices by which those obstacles were in some cases overcome Finally the volume examines the long term historical trajectories of these early village societies This transformative collection makes a powerful case for a renewed and invigorated archaeological focus on large scale comparative studies It will be an essential read for anyone interested not only in early village societies but also in the ways in which archaeology relates to anthropology other social sciences and history

Communities and Households in the Greater American Southwest Robert J. Stokes, 2019-07-01 Communities and Households in the Greater American Southwest presents new research on human organization in the American Southwest examining families households and communities in the Ancestral Puebloan Mogollon and Hohokam major cultural areas as well as the Fremont Jornada Mogollon and Lipan Apache areas from the time of earliest habitation to the twenty first century Using historical data dialectic approaches problem oriented and data driven analysis and ethnographic and gender studies methodologies the contributors offer diverse interpretations of what constitutes a site village and community how families and households organized their domestic space and how this organization has influenced researchers' interpretations of spatially derived archaeological data. Today's archaeologists and anthropologists understand that communities operate as a multi-level organizational contextual and referential human creation which informs their understanding of how people actively negotiate their way through and around community constraints. The chapters in this book creatively examine these interactions revealing the dynamic nature of ancient and modern groups in the American Southwest. The book has two broad complementary themes: one focusing on household decision making, identity and structural relations with the greater community; the other concerned with community organization and integration, household roles within the community and changes in community organization, violence and destabilization, coalescence and cooperation over time. Communities and Households in the Greater American Southwest weaves a rich tapestry of ancient and modern life through innovative approaches that will be of interest not only to Southwestern archaeologists but to all researchers and students interested in social organization at the household and community levels. Ancestral Landscapes of the Pueblo World James Elliot Snead, 2008. The eastern Pueblo heartland located in the northern Rio Grande country of New Mexico has fascinated archaeologists since the 1870s. In Ancestral Landscapes of the Pueblo World, James Snead uses an exciting new approach, landscape archaeology, to understand ancestral Pueblo communities and the way the people consciously or unconsciously shaped the land around them. Snead provides detailed insight into ancestral Puebloan cultures and societies using an approach he calls contextual experience, employing deep mapping and community scale analysis. This strategy goes far beyond the standard archaeological approaches using historical ethnography and contemporary Puebloan perspectives to better understand how past and present Pueblo worldviews and meanings are imbedded in the land. Snead focuses on five communities in the Pueblo heartland: Burnt Corn, Tobiimpange, Tsikwaiye, Los Aguajes and Tsankawi, using the results of intensive archaeological surveys to discuss the changes that occurred in these communities between AD 1250 and 1500. He examines the history of each area, comparing and contrasting them via the themes of provision, identity and movement, before turning to questions regarding social, political and economic organization. This revolutionary study thus makes an important contribution to landscape archaeology and explains how the Precolumbian Pueblo landscape was formed.

Reconsidering Mississippian Communities and Households Elizabeth Watts Malouchos, Alleen Betzenhauser, 2021-04-20. Explores the archaeology of Mississippian communities and households using new data and advances in method and theory. Published in 1995, Mississippian Communities and Households, edited by J. Daniel Rogers and Bruce D. Smith, was a foundational text that advanced southeastern archaeology in significant ways and brought household level archaeology to the forefront of the field. Reconsidering Mississippian Communities and Households revisits and builds on what has been learned in the years since the Rogers and Smith volume advancing the field further with the diverse perspectives of current social theory and methods and big data as applied to communities in Native America from the AD 900s to 1700s and from northeast Florida to southwest Arkansas Watts Malouchos and Betzenhauser bring together scholars researching diverse Mississippian Southeast and Midwest sites to investigate aspects of community and household construction maintenance and dissolution Thirteen original case studies prove that community can be enacted and expressed in various ways including in feasting pottery styles war and conflict and mortuary treatments Archaeological Data
