Promises, Oaths, and Vows Herbert J. Schlesinger, 2011-07-21 Considering that getting along in civil society is based on the expectation that most people will do what they say they will do i.e. essentially live up to their explicit or implicit promises it is amazing that so little scientific attention has been given to the act of promising A great deal of research has been done on the moral development of children for example but not on the child's ability to make and keep a promise one of the highest moral achievements What makes it possible developmentally cognitively and emotionally to make a promise in the first place And on the other hand what compels one to keep a promise or vow or threat when there seems to be no personal advantage in doing so and even when harm can be predicted How do we know when a promise is offered seriously to be taken at face value and how do we understand that another is only a polite gesture not to be taken seriously In Promises Oaths and Vows On the Psychology of Promising Herbert Schlesinger addresses these questions drawing on the literature of moral development in children the psychotherapy of a patient who regularly broke promises that were unnecessary in the first place those who were regarded as promising youngsters who did not fulfill their promise and those who feared making a promise a commitment or a threat out of fear that once made the utterance would take on a life of its own and could never be taken back Furthermore he illustrates his conclusions by examining the widespread use of promising in classical literature such as Greek drama and the plays of Shakespeare as well as the motivating and reifying power of the promise in Western religious traditions With a style honed over the penning of two previous books Schlesinger once again produces a work grounded in a firm analytic sensibility but which also retains the wit and candor of the seasoned analyst His seminal investigation of this all but neglected topic in the clinical literature is as timely as it is scholarly and with the title firmly in mind Promises Oaths and Vows is assured to be a worthy addition to any clinician's library and a provoking investigation into Nietzsche's notion of man as the animal who makes promises describe A lifetime cannot be defined in terms of hours days years decades or century Regardless of the length of time any relationship lasts we must learn to live every minute like it is our last That is what my one true love taught me He added truth honesty love and devotion together and we had a sum total of joy and happiness divided by the number of offsprings produced by that love And we never parted in anger or unforgiveness because no one can predict what the next minute will bring Sometimes I think my love was just too wise for this world that is why God called him home to be with Him As I look back over our life together I feel enormously blessed by God to have had such a love as this in my lifetime Only God made it possible Only God allowed me to experience total bliss for a little while 29 8 years Words cannot describe the memories stored in my memory bank of our span of time together In all my days of blissful retreat the only thing I feel I did not do enough of is giving grateful praise to the Almighty for creating that soul mate just for me and I for him Life will go on and in each whisk of air against my skin as I sit and read I will remember it is you my love stopping by to see me every now and then God saw you were getting tired So He did what He knew was best He watched and waited for the exact time You were in most need of some rest You did not say to me farewell Nor even a wave good bye God took you swift and easy I dare not ask God why He gave you to me for a while I loved you with all my heart I showed you I told you daily Even in death we are not apart Rest easy Honey until I get there I will know you when I arrive We will be just two angels forever Always partners side by side

Breach of Promise to Marry Denise Bates, 2014-01-15 A look back through the history of women who were about to be married only to be left at the altar and left with no choice but to take their revenge A wedding day is supposed to be the happiest most special and blessed event in a bride s life And most of the time it is But sometimes it is not In this fun fascinating look at betrothals that went bust before anyone even said I do the authors have collected the true stories of what happened when the groom suddenly decided I don t From the 1780s right up to the 1970s jilted women and the occasional crushed suitor employed a range of tactics to bring false lovers to book Here is a full wedding party of cases in which women found very different kinds of happy endings such as Mary Elizabeth Smith who forged evidence of a courtship to entrap an Earl Catherine Kempson who shot the man who denied their engagement Gladys Knowles who was awarded a record 10 000 in damages by a jury in 1890 and Daisy Mons who discreetly negotiated a 50 000 settlement from a nobleman Based on original research this social history of breach of promise shows that when men behaved badly hell had no fury like a woman scorned
