Critical Incident Stress Management in Aviation Joachim Vogt, 2016-04-22 Critical incident stress management (CISM) is now a well-established method in crisis intervention and one that is clearly needed within aviation. However, there are many peculiarities in this branch of CISM which require thorough consideration. People working in high-reliability environments need to be sensitive to others' reactions to critical stress. They are the normal reactions of normal people in abnormal situations. However, to ensure this, a proper programme must be put in place based on a scientific and standardized approach. This book describes the various methods and elements of the CISM model as well as their interventions. It also investigates the benefits of CISM on the individual level and on an organisational/strategic level. It details CISM training and courses and features a case study based on the Berlingen accident of 2002. Critical Incident Stress Management in Aviation will be of direct relevance to human factors experts, safety managers, ATCOs, and air navigation service providers, though there is also much that will be of interest to aviation physicians, psychologists, and airport/airline managers.

Post-Conflict Reconstruction Neil Ferguson, 2010-10-12. Violence and conflict are two of the greatest challenges the world will face in this millennium. Indeed, since the turn of the century, it is estimated that approximately four million people have died as a result of armed conflict. Ending these seemingly intractable conflicts is a priority for global stability. However, the signing of the peace accord or the ending of formal hostilities does not automatically bring a return to normality in these fractured societies. In practice, it is more likely that these fractured societies will face a period in the twilight between war and peace, a time when the world turns its attention to new problems and seemingly more pressing matters, leaving the country to struggle towards peace and a new social order. The book's contributors deal with the challenges faced in creating the foundations for the development of a positive peace from a variety of multi-disciplinary perspectives such as development studies, politics, psychoanalysis, psychology, sports studies and neuroscience. This breadth of perspectives offers innovative insights into the grey space between war and peace, which is home to millions of people across the globe and explores interventions which aim to create the conditions for positive post-conflict reconstruction.

Constructing Jesus Dale C. Allison, Jr., 2010-11-01. Best Book Relating to the New Testament 2011 Biblical Archaeology Society BAS Publication Award. What did Jesus think of himself? How did he face death? What were his expectations of the future? In this volume, now in paperback, internationally renowned Jesus scholar Dale Allison Jr. addresses such perennially fascinating questions about Jesus. The acclaimed hardcover edition received the Biblical Archaeology Society's Best Book Relating to the New Testament award in 2011. Representing the fruit of several decades of research, this major work questions standard approaches to Jesus studies and rethinks our knowledge of the historical Jesus in light of recent progress in the scientific study of memory. Allison's groundbreaking alternative strategy calls for applying what we know about the function of human memory to our reading of the Gospels in order to construct Jesus more soundly.

Past Trauma in Late Life Linda Hunt, Mary Marshall, Cherry Rowlings, 1997. In the professional and practice literature on working with older people, little attention has been given to the potential impact of trauma experienced in childhood and early adult life. This book looks at the effect of trauma on behaviour, which is often mistakenly viewed as part of the pathology of old age. The contributors pay particular attention to the impact of the Holocaust and of the war experience of civilians and combatants, as well as individual trauma. The authors call for sensitivity on the part of professionals and carers to the possibility of early trauma as a causal factor in distress in older people. The book encourages all those providing services to prepare themselves and their clients for a journey through what is often painful territory. The material contained in this volume will help both specialist and non specialist practitioners to map a more certain course towards a coherent approach to therapeutic intervention and the care and support of many people still suffering from the consequences of earlier traumatic experiences

Sit on Our Hands, or Stand on Our Feet? Roger Philip Abbott,2013-01-07 The aim of Sit on Our Hands or Stand on Our Feet is not to present a theology that explains disasters In fact there is no such theology Nor is this work primarily for those who are responded to it is not part of the theological grab bag that Christian responders carry with them to use for the benefit of casualties It is more a part of the Christian s engaged practical theological apprenticeship prior to and during a response This book represents the role of the practical theologian who empowers the church community s legitimation and contribution in disaster response and who encourages individual Christians whose calling into particularly relevant professions whose natural skills and or professional training could find them placed in a major incident responding status paid or voluntary doing their work as unto the Lord It is a serious must read for any Christians who have hearts heavy with compassion but who are not sure what to do or why when disaster strikes
