Knowledge about the customer is fundamental for the establishment of viable e-commerce solutions. Rich web logs provide companies with data about their customers and prospective customers allowing micro-segmentation and personalized interactions. Customer acquisition costs in the hundreds of dollars per customer are common justifying heavy emphasis on correct targeting. Once customers are acquired, customer retention becomes the target. Retention through customer satisfaction and loyalty can be greatly improved by acquiring and exploiting knowledge about these customers and their needs. Although web logs are the source for valuable knowledge patterns, one should keep in mind that the Web is only one of the interaction channels between a company and its customers. Data obtained from conventional channels provide invaluable knowledge on existing market segments while mobile communication adds further customer groups. In response, companies are beginning to integrate multiple sources of data including web, wireless, call centers, and brick-and-mortar store data into a single data warehouse that provides a multifaceted view of their customers, their preferences, interests, and expectations.
