Security The Middle East:

Security and Insecurity in the Middle East Imad El-Anis, Sahra Joharchi, Natasha Underhill, 2018-10-09 This volume draws together a number of research papers presented at a conference titled Security Insecurity and Prospects for Peace in the Middle East and North Africa organised by Nottingham Trent University's Middle East and North Africa Research cluster in April 2016. The conference focused on questions pertinent to what may be termed the post Arab Spring era in which the Middle East is experiencing unprecedented national and transnational challenges. Conflict, instability, radicalisation and the mass displacement of people have become increasingly salient features of the political and economic landscape of the region. The contributions here analyse a range of political, economic, security and socio-cultural issues that the authors argue lie at the heart of the instability that the region is currently experiencing. Re-thinking issues of security and insecurity in the Middle East not only allows us to explain what might have led to current instability but also allows us to posit possible solutions to these security issues. In doing so, this book goes beyond the concepts of security and insecurity as a standard account of perpetrator versus victim in a state-centric and violence-centric manner to a broader and more complex understanding of the underlying processes informing security and insecurity in the region. The contributors include scholars from around the world working in a variety of different fields including Middle Eastern studies, international relations and international political economy, providing an eclectic discussion of the state of the region.

The Future Security Environment in the Middle East Nora Bensahel, Daniel Byman, 2004-03-12 This report identifies several important trends that are shaping regional security. It examines traditional security concerns such as energy security and the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, as well as newer challenges posed by political reform, economic reform, civil-military relations, leadership change and the information revolution. The report concludes by identifying the implications of these trends for U.S. foreign policy.

Middle Eastern Security Efraim Inbar, 1995 The Middle East has been plagued with conflict for most of this century and it remains one of the world's major trouble spots. Despite recent peace initiatives, the Middle Eastern countries continue to be among the world's largest consumers of advanced conventional weapons and have now developed weapons of mass destruction. This collection of essays examines the obstacles to an effective arms control regime in the Middle East and assesses the prospects of overcoming them. The volume discusses in detail the security issues of the region: the proliferation of chemical and nuclear weapons and the spread of ballistic missiles; the Arab-Israeli conflict; the domestic aspects of strategic doctrines; the role of the United States, Russia and Western Europe; and the prospects for establishing confidence building measures and regional security co-operation.
