First Burma Campaign, 2020-08-30 The British Army s report on the Japanese invasion of Burma during WWII based on firsthand accounts by the officers who survived it In 1942 the Japanese military drove British and Indian forces out of Burma Colonel E C V Foucar M C was given the task of discovering what happened Seeking information and documentary evidence from officers of the First Burma Campaign Foucar wrote this detailed account for the Director of Military Training This volume describes the challenging geographical climatic and political conditions in Burma before turning to the devastating Japanese ground assault He describes harrowing episodes such as the Disaster at Sittang Bridge the evacuation of Rangoon and the march to the River Irrawaddy in an attempt to secure the north of Burma and its oilfields With the Japanese closing in on the beleaguered British force the decision was taken to abandon Burma and try to reach India The ragged disease ridden troops battled their way west just as the monsoons broke General Wavell wrote that operations were now a race with the weather as with the Japanese and as much a fight against nature as against the enemy

Genders in the Life Course Antonella Pinnelli, Filomena Racioppi, Rosella Rettaroli, 2007-09-06 Although both demography and gender relations have been the focus of research for quite some time the intersection of gender studies and demographic analysis is a more recent phenomenon Fortunately gender aspects of demography and demographic aspects of gender are two lines of research that have received increased attention in recent years there is a growing group of researchers active in this area and consequently a growing body of publications of different kinds Despite this books treating the topic of gender and demography in a more comprehensive fashion are rare In fact I can think of few examples since the publication of two edited volumes in the first half of the 1990s namely Women's position and demographic change and Gender and family change in industrialized countries both resulting from the activities of the International Union for the Scientific Study of Population The editors of the current volume are therefore to be congratulated for taking the initiative to produce a much needed volume on gender and demography in developed countries with a focus on Europe The book covers a lot of ground from the age at first intercourse over union formation and union dissolution to excess male mortality and report important findings of empirical research mostly based on comparative data from a number of European countries The source of these comparative data is in most cases the Family and Fertility Surveys (FFS) carried out in the 1990s
