Reviewing Britains Defence:

Reviewing Britain's Presence East of Suez Maike Hausen, 2022-06-14 Maike Hausen presents a transnational multi perspective review of strategic and security discussions among the former British white settler colonies Australia Canada and New Zealand in the 1960s Focusing on the foreign policy debate surrounding the British decision to withdraw their military East of Suez from Southeast Asia she reviews extensive source material to examine the transformation of political diplomatic and strategic ties between Great Britain and Australia Canada and New Zealand By embedding the East of Suez discussion into a larger framework of long term postcolonial transformations and developments of the Cold War and decolonization the study traces how the British decision upset the traditional conduct of concerted foreign policy and led to notions of crisis and uncertainty as well as to reviews that would ultimately contribute to more independent national outlooks and policies

Reviewing Britain's Defence Ian Bellany, 1994 British defence policy since 1970 is studied using the device of distinguishing between stated operational and industrial levels of policy making In an ideal world these levels should be in line or if out of line should be so as a result of deliberate policy rather than inadvertence Failure to bring some of these levels of policy into line in spite of attempts to do so accounts for a variety of otherwise puzzling features of British defence policy consistently high defence budgets also the subject of a statistical annex even when compared to France a navy still virtually as large as the next two largest navies added together and the 90 per cent of all armaments for British forces consistently purchased from British industry at a time of rapidly diminishing British industrial competitiveness The intuitively important phenomenon of the defence review is placed in context as an act designed to resolve contradictions and inconsistencies between the different levels of policy

Understanding UK Military Capability Andrew R. Curtis, 2024-05-21 Concentrating on decisions taken below the political level this book uncovers the factors that underpin the translation of strategic direction into military capability

The Strategic Defence and Security Review and the National Security Strategy Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Defence Committee, 2011-08-03 This report notes mounting concern that UK Armed Forces may be falling below the minimum utility required to deliver the commitments that they are currently being tasked to carry out let alone the tasks they are likely to face between 2015 to 2020 when it is acknowledged that there will be capability gaps The Committee is concerned that UK Armed Forces will be continually operating at the maximum level envisaged by the Defence Planning Assumptions The Committee is not convinced that this aspiration can be achieved by co operation with our allies given the challenges of aligning political with operational needs The SDSR identified seven military tasks and the Defence Planning Assumptions that underpin them However the Review fails to show how decisions such as those on the Aircraft Carriers and Nimrod MRA4 will lead to the Armed Forces being able to undertake those military tasks The Committee has serious concerns over the realisation of what is called Future Force 2020 the Government s intended shape of the Armed Forces from 2020 particularly as the provision of the necessary resources is only a Government aspiration not Government policy The MoD must reform and ensure substantially improved transparency and control over its finance and budgetary practices When committing to undertake new operations the Government should state from the outset where that operation fits in the Defence Planning Assumptions and which of the military tasks it is meeting The Committee is concerned that the Government seems to have postponed the sensible aspiration of bringing commitments and resources into line in that it has taken on the new commitment of Libya while reducing the resources available to MoD Confrontation, Strategy and War Termination Christopher Tuck, 2016-05-23 At the heart of this book is the problem of war termination Britain won an almost unbroken string of tactical military victories during an undeclared war against the Republic of Indonesia in the 1960s yet it proved difficult to translate this into strategic success Using conflict termination theories this book argues that British strategy during Confrontation was both exemplary and flawed both of which need not be mutually exclusive The British experience in Indonesia represents an illuminating case study of the difficulties associated with strategy and the successful termination of conflicts The value of this book lies in two areas as a contribution to the literature on British counter insurgency operations and as a contribution to the debates on the problems of war termination in the context of strategic thought External Affairs Review New Zealand. Department of External Affairs, 1966 Joint Force Quarterly, 2006 Forces for Good Graeme Cheeseman, 2004 Forces for good develops and explores the concept of cosmopolitan militaries It examines how governments militaries and institutions have responded politically doctrinally and operationally to claims that militaries have a new role in cosmopolitan law enforcement that allows and perhaps even requires the use of force to protect and defend those who are the victims of gross abuse of human rights The contributors include academics defence practitioners and serving military officers BOOK JACKET Central Organizations Of Defense Martin Edmonds, 2019-02-22 Defense and strategic studies traditionally have paid little attention to the structure and administrative context within which policy decisions are made This volume fills that existing gap focusing on the principal actors in the defense decisionmaking field their relationships to one another and the statutory and legal provisions governing the spheres of responsibility and competence among military civil and paramilitary institutions The book is designed to assist scholars and policymakers in comparative analyses of complex organizations and institutions and to identify similarities and differences among the central administrative structures of the major industrial states Toward this end each contributor concentrates on his or her own transnational analysis The authors are all respected experts on defense issues in their own countries and their analyses conform to a common framework developed to compare central organizations of defense around the world and to define what states can learn from each other's experiences and what developments can be expected Strategic Review Robert F. Grattan, 2016-04-01 Following careers in the military and in industry Robert Grattan has devoted himself to the subject of strategy and its related theory through his research into the strategy implementation employed by business governments and the military Strategy process is widely studied and taught but argues

Robert Grattan comprehensive prescriptive theories have yet to be developed This book is based on analysis of the strategic defence review SDR conducted by the UK Ministry of Defence the methodology for which has been employed in other countries The study focuses on how the review was managed through the twin lenses of strategic business management theory and the Essence of Decision theory of governmental decision making closely associated with the John F Kennedy School of Government in the USA The author has been fortunate in being granted interviews with the leading figures in Government the Civil Service and the Military who participated in the SDR process and in having gained access to information in Ministry of Defence files under Freedom of Information legislation The result is Strategic Review a book that provides vivid insights into what happened in a large complex organisation during a major strategic review and highlights the problems likely to be encountered during the process of formulating strategy in business in government in sport and any other human endeavour It will appeal to many in business intrigued by the similarities between the issues facing business and military strategists to those involved in public policy making to the defence community and to academics and higher level students with an interest in this rich field of study Air University Review ,1976

Challenging Retrenchment Tore T. Petersen,2010 This collection of essays examines the British and American experience in the Middle East from 1950 to 1980 The book compares British and American foreign policy in the Far East and the Persian Gulf explaining that the Anglo American relationship was far from harmonious Both powers tried to manipulate the other to its own advantage While Washington was clearly the stronger power London was never reduced to subservience The book looks at the often neglected role of Egypt s King Farouk arguing that Egypt was forced to contend with Britain s imperial power which could at a few hours notice overwhelm or undermine Egypt s supposed sovereign institutions At the same time however London was unwilling or unable to prevent Gamal Abdul Nasser and his revolutionary officers from seizing power in 1952 While London perhaps mishandled the transfer of power in Egypt the book points out how the British managed the transition from being the dominant power in Jordan to preserving a substantial influence by inviting American participation in securing regime legitimacy In the end American dollars supported the Hashemite regime while British influence remained just as British officials had wished Challenging Retrenchment argues that by the mid 1970s there was an Anglo American understanding that the Northern Gulf was America s responsibility and that the southern Gulf was Britain s The book also looks at how intelligence and clandestine operations were used and abused by the British in pursuit of their strategic interests first somewhat unsuccessfully in Yemen in the 1960s but with more tangible success in Oman in the 1970s Series ROSTRA Books Trondheim Studies in History No 4 NATO Review ,1980

A strained partnership? Thomas Robb,2015-11-01 This electronic version has been made available under a Creative Commons BY NC ND open access license This is the first monograph length study that charts the coercive diplomacy of the administrations of Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford as practised against their British ally in order to persuade Edward Heath s government to follow a more amenable course throughout the Year of Europe and to convince Harold Wilson's governments to lessen the severity of proposed defence cuts. Such diplomacy proved effective against Heath but rather less so against Wilson. It is argued that relations between the two sides were often strained indeed to the extent that the most special elements of the relationship that of intelligence and nuclear co-operation were suspended. Yet the relationship also witnessed considerable co-operation. This book offers new perspectives on US and UK policy towards British membership of the European Economic Community demonstrates how US détente policies created strain in the special relationship reveals the temporary shutdown of US UK intelligence and nuclear co-operation provides new insights in US UK defence co-operation and re-evaluates the US UK relationship throughout the IMF Crisis. The Arms Trade, Security and Conflict Paul Levine, Ron Smith, 2003-05-15 An area of huge concern to many people around the world the economics of the Arms Industry are a vital strand that needs to be understood. This volume brings together contributors from all over the globe and focuses on this important area. Britain and N. A. T. O.'s Northern Flank Geoffrey Till, 1988-06-18 British Defence in the 21st Century John Louth, Trevor Taylor, 2018-09-21 This book analyses UK defence as a complex interdependent public private enterprise covering politics management society and technology as well as the military. Building upon wide ranging applied research with extensive access to ministers policy makers senior military commanders and industrialists the book characterises British defence as a phenomenon that has endured extensive transformation this century. Looking at the subject afresh as a complex extended enterprise involving politics alliances businesses skills economics military practices and citizens the authors profoundly reshape our understanding of defence and how it is to be commissioned and delivered in a world dominated by geopolitical risks and uncertainties. The book makes the case that this new understanding of defence must inevitably lead to new policies and processes to ensure its health and vitality. This book will be of much interest to students of defence studies British politics and military and strategic studies as well as policy makers and practitioners. Air University Library Index to Military Periodicals, 1998 Arms, Economics and British Strategy G. C. Peden, 2007-02-08 This book integrates strategy technology and economics and presents a new way of looking at twentieth century military history and Britain's decline as a great power. G. C. Peden explores how from the Edwardian era to the 1960s warfare was transformed by a series of innovations including dreadnoughts submarines aircraft tanks radar nuclear weapons and guided missiles. He shows that the cost of these new weapons tended to rise more quickly than national income and argues that strategy had to be adapted to take account of both the increased potency of new weapons and the economy's diminishing ability to sustain armed forces of a given size. Prior to the development of nuclear weapons British strategy was based on an ability to wear down an enemy through blockade attrition in the First World War and strategic bombing in the Second and therefore power rested as much on economic strength as on armaments. The Struggle for Labour's Soul Matt Beech, Kevin Hickson, Raymond Plant, 2018-06-14 The election of the most left wing Labour Party Leader since 1945 followed by the Party's third consecutive general election defeat and the ongoing cultural divisions around Brexit present an ideal opportunity for a thorough re evaluation of the state of the Party within its broader ideological and historical context This second edition of this highly respected book analyses the current developments and places them in their historical setting through a clear three part framework of Ideological Positions Struggles and Commentaries Thoroughly updated and featuring contributions by leading academics and politicians it continues to represent one of the most ground breaking and thorough analyses of Labour s political thought in a generation and will be of key interest to scholars students and observers of British Politics British History Party Politics and the Labour Party
