

A watercolor illustration of a bunch of grapes. The grapes are rendered in various shades of purple, pink, and blue, with some showing highlights and shadows to give them a three-dimensional appearance. They are surrounded by large, broad leaves in shades of green and yellow, suggesting a sunlit vineyard. The background is a mix of light and dark washes, creating a sense of depth and atmosphere. The overall style is soft and painterly, characteristic of watercolor art.

Deborah Sokolove, 2013-07-10 As an artist Deborah Sokolove has often been surprised and dismayed by the unexamined attitudes and assumptions that the church holds about how artists think and how art functions in human life By investigating these attitudes and tying them to concrete examples Sokolove hopes to demystify art to bring art down to earth where theologians pastors and ordinary Christians can wrestle with its meanings participate in its processes and understand its uses In showing the commonalities and distinctions among the various ways that artists themselves approach their work Sanctifying Art can help the church talk about the arts in ways that artists will recognize As a member of both the church and the art world Sokolove is well positioned to bridge the gap between the habits of thought that inform the discourse of the art world and those quite different ideas about art that are taken for granted by many Christians When art is understood as intellectual technical and physical as well as ethereal mysterious and sacred we will see it as an integral part of our life together in Christ fully human and fully divine Unveiling the Artist Within
