SAMPLE Here I am only four hundred years old said the Monkey King and I've already reached the heights of greatness What is left to hope and strive for What can be higher than a king Your Majesty said the gibbon carefully we have ever been grateful for that time four centuries ago when you hatched from the stone wandered into our midst and found for us this hidden cave behind the waterfall We made you our king as the greatest honor we could bestow Still I must tell you that kings are not the highest of beings They're not said the Monkey King No Your Majesty Above them are gods who dwell in Heaven and govern Earth Then there are Immortals who have gained great powers and live forever And finally there are Buddhas and Bodhisattvas who have conquered illusion and escaped rebirth Wonderful cried the Monkey King Maybe I can become all three He considered a moment then said I'll start with the Immortals I'll search the earth till I've found one then learn to become one myself

Adventures of the Monkey God Cheng'en Wu, Alison Waley, 1987 One of China's favourite classics this is the far east's story of evolution the religions the philosophies the legends of the oldest civilisation on earth Monkey is mankind full of faults mischievous ambitious and vain But he is also generous valiant and intrepid He is delinquent but also delightful He cannot resist challenge he loathes self pity above all he despises despair

Cultural Curiosity Josephine M.T. Khu, 2001-07-11 This anthology of autobiographical essays reveals the human side of the Chinese diaspora Written by ethnic Chinese who were born or raised outside of China these moving pieces full of the poignant details of everyday life describe the experience of growing up as a visible minority and the subsequent journey each author made to China The authors whose diverse backgrounds in countries such as New Zealand Denmark Sri Lanka England Indonesia and the United States mirror the complex global scope of the Chinese diaspora describe in particular how their journey to the country of their ancestors transformed their sense of what it means to be Chinese The collection as a whole provides important insights into what ethnic identity has come to mean in our transnational era Among the pieces is Brad Wong's discussion of his visit to his grandfather's poverty stricken village in China's southern Guangdong province He describes working with a few of the peasants tilling vegetables and compares life in the village with his middle class upbringing in a San Francisco suburb In another essay Milan Lin Rodrigo tells of her life in Sri Lanka and of the trip she made to China as an adult She describes the difficult and sometimes humorous cultural differences she experienced when she met her Chinese half sister and her father's first wife Josephine Khu's lively afterword provides background information on the Chinese diaspora and gives a theoretical framework for understanding the issues raised in the essays This intimate and rich anthology will be compelling reading for all who are seeking answers to the increasingly complex issue of ethnic and personal identity
