MOVING BEYOND BOUNDARIES
VOLUME I: INTERNATIONAL DIMENSIONS OF BLACK WOMEN'S WRITING

Moving Beyond Boundaries is a two-volume collection of creative and critical writing by black women writers from very different communities in a wide range of geographical contexts - the United States, Africa, Latin America and Europe.

Inspired by the need to expand our understanding of what constitutes black women's writing, to recognise its diversity, to cast a wider and more ambitious net, Volume 1, International Dimensions of Black Women's Writing, moves beyond the familiar canons of black women's writing to offer a rich sampler of creative writing from women of colour in many parts of the globe.

In narrative stories, reflections, commentaries, writers from diverse cultural sites speak of their existences and experiences. Poets challenge the invisibilities, the erasures, the 'silencing' that until now have muted their distinctive voices.

The result is an extraordinary and inspiring testimony to the international dimensions of black women's writing, and to the determination with which black women from many different cultures have sought to find a voice of their own as they move beyond the particular boundaries of language, race and gender.

The companion volume, Black Women's Diasporas, complements this collection with critical discussions, commentaries and responses by the writers themselves and their critics to the world of black women writers worldwide.

Carole Boyce Davies is Professor of English in the Department of English, African and African-American Studies and Comparative Literature at the State University of New York, Binghamton. She has published widely on women writers and feminist theory in Africa, the Caribbean and African-America.

'Molara Ogundipe-Leslie is a leading women's studies scholar, a literary critic and a poet. She has been actively involved in women's organising in Africa, as a founder member of the Association of African Women in Research and Development and Women in Nigeria, and is the Director of Women's Studies at Indiana University at Fort Wayne.

Kalenda C. Eaton, 2010-06-21 This book examines how cultural and ideological reactions to activism in the post Civil Rights Black community were depicted in fiction written by Black women writers 1965 1980 By recognizing and often challenging prevailing cultural paradigms within the post Civil Rights era writers such as Toni Morrison Alice Walker Toni Cade Bambara and Paule Marshall fictionalized the black community in critical ways that called for further examination of progressive activism after the much publicized end of the Civil Rights Movement Through their writings the authors confronted marked shifts within African American literature politics and culture that proved detrimental to the collective wellness of the community at large

The Daughter's Return Caroline Rody, 2001 The Daughter's Return offers a close analysis of an emerging genre in African American and Caribbean fiction produced by women writers who make imaginative returns to their ancestral pasts Considering some of the defining texts of contemporary fiction Toni Morrison's Beloved Jean Rhys's Wide Sargasso Sea and Michelle Cliff's No Telephone to Heaven Rody discusses their common inclusion of a daughter who returns to the site of her people's founding trauma of slavery through memory or magic Rody treats these texts as allegorical expressions of the desire of writers newly emerging into cultural authority to reclaim their difficult inheritance and finds a counter plot of heroines encounters with women of other racial and ethnic groups running through these works

Black Women, Identity, and Cultural Theory Kevin Everod Quashie, 2004 Ultimately moves beyond these to propose a new cultural aesthetic that aims to center black women and their philosophies Book jacket theories on race and gender The discussion illustrates how these negative aspects have influenced the mainstream literary imagination that contrasts with the self portrayals created by women writers themselves Even as there continues to be disadvantageous constructions there is no doubt that a modification has occurred over time in images representation and articulation It is a change directly associated with the instances when women themselves are the writers The historiographic image of the Afro Cuban and Afro Brazilian woman as a written object is ideologically replaced by a vision of her as a writing subject It is here that the vision of a creative multifaceted and diversified literature becomes important
