Moving People And Resources Studies In Transprotation:

Moving People and Resources Donald C. Wilson, Rowland Lorimer, 1991 Long Term Socio-Ecological Research Simron Jit Singh, Helmut Haberl, Marian Chertow, Michael Mirtl, Martin Schmid, 2012-11-13 The authors in this volume make a case for LTSE's potential in providing insights, knowledge and experience necessary for a sustainability transition. This expertly edited selection of contributions from Europe and North America reviews the development of LTSE since its inception and assesses its current state which has evolved to recognize the value of formulating solutions to the host of ecological threats we face. Through many case studies, this book gives the reader a greater sense of where we are and what still needs to be done to engage in and make meaning from long-term place-based and cross-disciplinary engagements with socio-ecological systems.

Publicly Funded Transport Research in the P. R. China, Japan, and Korea George A. Giannopoulos, 2017-11-09 This book discusses transport research and innovation, highlighting prospects for cooperation between different countries. To create a basis for such cooperation, the book first describes the status quo in individual countries, focusing on China, Japan and Korea, and identifies the main technological trends as well as current innovation policies in these countries, discussing their main advantages and the challenges to establishing collaborations between them. The book is a valuable resource for transport researchers, research authorities and transport organizations not only in the three countries considered but also in the US and the EU. By providing a revealing snapshot of current transport research and policies, it fosters exchanges and collaborations between nations.

Canadian Book Review Annual, 1991 Building a Capable State Ian Palmer, Nishendra Moodley, Susan Parnell, 2017-11-15 The sustainable development goals signed in 2016 marked a new phase in global development thinking, one which is focused on ecologically and fiscally sustainable human settlements. Few countries offer a better testing ground for their attainment than post-apartheid South Africa. Since the coming to power of the African National Congress, the country has undergone a policy-making revolution driven by an urgent need to improve access to services for the country's black majority. A quarter-century on from the fall of apartheid, Building a Capable State asks what lessons can be learned from the South African experience. The book assesses whether the South African government has succeeded in improving service delivery, focusing on the vital sectors of water and sanitation, energy, roads, public transport and housing. Emphasizing the often overlooked role of local government institutions and finance, the book demonstrates that effective service delivery can have a profound impact on the social structure of emerging economies and must form an integral part of any future development strategy. A comprehensive examination of urban service delivery in the global South, Building a Capable State is essential reading for students and practitioners across the social sciences, public finance and engineering sectors.
