involved in mapping throughout history their story has largely been hidden The standard histories of cartography have focused on men A woman's name is rarely found In Women in American Cartography Judith Tyner argues that women were not deliberately erased but overlooked because of the types of maps they made and the jobs they held Tyner looks at over fifty women exemplars in American cartography and their maps She looks at teachers who made school atlases in the early nineteenth century at pictorial mapmakers and book illustrators who created popular maps at women who pioneered social and persuasive mapping promoting causes such as suffrage at women travelers who recorded their trips and mapped unexplored places at women whose maps helped win World War II at women academics who studied taught and wrote about cartographic theory at colleges and universities and at women who worked in government agencies and commercial mapping companies These are just a few of the stories of women in American cartography Chambers's Miscellany of Useful and Entertaining Tracts William Chambers, Robert Chambers, 1845 Map Worlds Will C. van den Hoonaard, 2013-09-21 Map Worlds plots a journey of discovery through the world of women map makers from the golden age of cartography in the sixteenth century Low Countries to tactile maps in contemporary Brazil Author Will C van den Hoonaard examines the history of women in the profession sets out the situation of women in technical fields and cartography related organizations and outlines the challenges they face in their careers Map Worlds explores women as colourists in early times describes the major houses of cartographic production and delves into the economic function of intermarriages among cartographic houses and families It relates how in later centuries working from the margins women produced maps to record painful tribal memories or sought to remedy social injustices Much later one woman so changed the way we think about continents that the shift has been likened to the Copernican revolution Other women created order and wonder about the lunar landscape and still others turned the art and science of making maps inside out exposing the hidden unconscious and subliminal text of maps Shared by all these map makers are themes of social justice and making maps work for the betterment of humanity
