Cottrell, 2017-11-28 Professional Music Making in London is an engaging yet innovative study which examines the lives and work of Western art musicians from an ethnographic perspective Drawing in part on his own professional experience Stephen Cottrell considers to what extent musicians in Western society conform to Alan Merriam's paradigmatic assessment of them as having low status yet high respect as well as being given an unusual degree of licence to deviate from convention The book draws on a wide variety of approaches from scholars elsewhere from ethnomusicologists such as Bruno Nettl and Henry Kingsbury performance theorists such as Richard Schechner and Victor Turner as well as psychologists such as Sigmund Freud and Melanie Klein This rich intellectual heritage provides the framework for discussion of a variety of themes including how musicians conceive their self identity and how this is negotiated in the professional musical world how the deputy system facilitates musical exchange and engenders gift relationships how humour lubricates social and musical relationships and mitigates the stresses of musicians' lives and how the events in which musicians participate can be viewed as quasi rituals and thus related to analogous events in non Western cultures The focus of this study is on professional music making in London one of the world's busiest centres of musical performance Yet the issues raised and explored are deeply relevant to other major centres of Western art music such as New York Berlin or Sydney Ethnomusicologists anthropologists musicologists performers teachers and concert goers will find this book a stimulating insight into and investigation of Western art musicians and their place in today's world Practicing Perfection Roger Chaffin, Gabriela Imreh, Mary

Crawford, 2005-04-11 The memory feats of famous musicians seem almost superhuman Can such extraordinary accomplishments be explained by the same principles that account for more ordinary everyday memory abilities To find out a concert pianist videotaped her practice as she learned a new piece for performance the third movement Presto of the Italian Concerto by J S Bach The story of how the pianist went about learning memorizing and polishing the piece is told from the viewpoints of the pianist the second author and of a cognitive psychologist the first author observing the practice The counterpoint between these insider and outsider perspectives is framed by the observations of a social psychologist the third author about how the two viewpoints were reconciled The CD that accompanies the book provides for yet another perspective allowing the reader to hear the polished performance Written for both psychologists and musicians the book provides the first detailed description of how an experienced pianist organizes her practice identifying stages of the learning process characteristics of expert practice and practice strategies The main focus however is on memorization An analysis of what prominent pianists of the past century have said about memorization reveals considerable disagreement and confusion Using previous work on expert memory as a starting point the authors show how principles of memory developed by cognitive psychologists apply to musical performance and uncover the intimate connection between memorization and interpretation
