Caging the Rainbow Francesca Merlan, 1998-05-01. Caging the Rainbow explores the lives of Aborigines in the small regional town of Katherine, Northern Territory, Australia. Francesca Merlan combines ethnography and theory to grapple with issues surrounding the debate about the authenticity of contemporary cultural activity. Throughout, the vulnerability of Fourth World peoples to others' representations of them and the ethical problems this poses are kept in view.

Frontier Nomads of Iran Richard Tapper, 1997-08-28. Richard Tapper's 1997 book, which is based on three decades of ethnographic fieldwork and extensive documentary research, traces the political and social history of the Shahsevan, one of the major nomadic peoples of Iran. The story is a dramatic one, recounting the mythical origins of the tribes, their unification as a confederacy, and their decline under the Pahlavi Shahs. The book is intended as a contribution to three different debates. The first concerns the riddle of Shahsevan origins, while another considers how far changes in tribal social and political formations are a function of relations with states. The third discusses how different constructions of the identity of a particular people determine their view of the past. In this way, the book promises not only to make a major contribution to the history and anthropology of the Middle East and Central Asia, but also to theoretical debates in both disciplines.

The Archaeology of Tribal Societies William A. Parkinson, 2002-03-01. Anthropological archaeologists have long attempted to develop models that will let them better understand the evolution of human social organization. In our search to understand how chiefdoms and states evolve and how those societies differ from egalitarian bands, we have neglected to develop models that will aid the understanding of the wide range of variability that exists between them. This volume attempts to fill this gap by exploring social organization in tribal or autonomous village societies from several different ethnographic, ethnohistoric, and archaeological contexts, from the Pre-Pottery Neolithic Period in the Near East to the contemporary Jivaro of Amazonia.

Indigenist Mobilization Luisa Steur, 2017-05-01. In Kerala, political activists with a background in Communism are now instead asserting political demands on the basis of indigenous identity. Why did a notion of indigenous belonging come to replace the discourse of class in subaltern struggles? Indigenist Mobilization answers this question through a detailed ethnographic study of the dynamics between the Communist party and indigenist activists and the subtle ways in which global capitalist restructuring leads to a resonance of indigenist visions in the changing everyday working lives of subaltern groups in Kerala.

Education and Society in a Changing Mizoram Lakshmi Bhatia, 2012-12-06

Located in the domain of cultural politics the book with rich ethnographical data from Mizoram a lesser known and understood state brings the community state and culture to centre stage along with family and stratification of the sociological discourse in education The book argues for a re look at school education in Mizoram besides providing critical insights into the North East region as a whole It also points to the dilemmas of development in that region and suggests possible ways out of the impasse Marking a significant departure from conventional thinking on education as human capital as reflected in North East Vision 2020 the book strongly advocates the need for critical pedagogies based on learning from conflict inculcating the values of tolerance and compassion as a precursor to peace reconceptualising development not merely as economic but as indicator of national happiness and valuing lives equally besides respect for traditional institutions thus marking a break from the much resented paternalism that underpins all state interventions in education One of the first studies of its kind regarding experience and practice of education the book makes an important contribution to the role that education can play to usher in peace and promote respect for differences
