Nuclearization Of South Asia:

The Politics of Nuclear Weapons in South Asia Bhumitra Chakma, 2016-02-24 An important and critical re evaluation of South Asia's post tests nuclear politics in contrast to other books this volume emphasises the political dimension of South Asia's nuclear weapons explains how the bombs are used as politico strategic assets rather than pure battlefield weapons and how India and Pakistan utilise them for politico strategic purposes in an extremely complex and competitive South Asian strategic landscape Written by a group of perceptive observers of South Asia this volume evaluates the current state of Indo Pakistani nuclear deterrents the challenges that the two countries confront in building their nuclear forces the post test nuclear doctrines of the two strategic rivals the implications of Indo Pakistani politics for regional cooperation the role of two systemic actors USA and China in the region's nuclear politics and the critical issues of confidence building and nuclear arms control

The Nuclearization of South Asia Kamal Matinuddin, 2002 Tracing the nuclear and missile programs of India and Pakistan from their inception this book places an important focus on their present state It highlights security models shedding light on the role of outside powers in promoting or retarding nuclear weapon status It also discusses theories of nuclear deterrence and suggests that the likelihood of their failure is strongest in South Asia

South Asia's Nuclear Security Bhumitra Chakma, 2014-12-17 South Asia is often viewed as a potential nuclear flashpoint and a probable source of nuclear terrorism But how valid are such perceptions This book seeks to address this question and assesses the region's nuclear security from two principal standpoints First it evaluates the robustness of the Indo Pakistani mutual deterrence by analysing the strength and weaknesses of the competing arguments regarding the issue It also analyses the causes and consequences of nuclear arms race between India and Pakistan the nature of deterrence structure in the region and the challenges of confidence building and arms control between the two countries in order to assess the robustness of South Asia's nuclear deterrence Second it assesses the safety and security of the nuclear assets and nuclear infrastructure of India and Pakistan The author holds that the debate on South Asia's nuclear security is largely misplaced because the optimists tend to overemphasise the stabilising effects of nuclear weapons and the pessimists are too alarmists It is argued that while the risks of nuclear weapons are significant it is unlikely that India and Pakistan will give up their nuclear arsenals in the foreseeable future Therefore what needs to happen is that while nuclear elimination should be the long term goal in the interim years the two countries need to pursue minimum deterrence policies to reduce the likelihood of deterrence failure and the possibility of obtaining fissile materials by non state actors

Strategic Dynamics and Nuclear Weapons Proliferation in South Asia Bhumitra Chakma, 2004 This book analyses India and Pakistan's decision to go nuclear against the odds of Nuclear Non Proliferation Treaty based nuclear order It reflects upon the key factors that contributed to and the process that prompted India and Pakistan's nuclear programmes to take a military orientation which eventually culminated in the May 1998 nuclear tests It also explains the motivation which underscored both India and Pakistan's determination to advance nuclear postures in 1998 that appeared to be inconsistent with the post Cold War global strategic environment Further this book explains why international and regional nuclear non proliferation regimes were ineffective in preventing India and Pakistan from going nuclear Dangerous Deterrent S. Paul Kapur,2007 Does the proliferation of nuclear weapons cause ongoing conflicts to diminish or to intensify The spread of nuclear weapons to South Asia offers an opportunity to investigate this crucial question Optimistic scholars argue that by threatening to raise the cost of war astronomically nuclear weapons make armed conflict in South Asia extremely unlikely Pessimistic scholars maintain that nuclear weapons make the subcontinent war prone because of technological political and organizational problems This book argues that nuclear weapons have destabilized the subcontinent principally because of their interaction with India and Pakistan s territorial preferences and relative military capabilities These findings challenge both optimistic and pessimistic conventional wisdom and have implications beyond South Asia

Second Strike Rajesh Rajagopalan,2005 In May 1998 India tested a series of nuclear devices in Pokharan Two weeks later Pakistan announced a matching series of its own tests A year later when the two countries had a bitter confrontation in Kargil the worst fears of proliferation pessimists appeared to be coming true The alarm bells have never really stopped ringing since then In Second Strike Rajesh Rajagopalan challenges much of the conventional wisdom on the perceived nuclear danger in the region and suggests that the nuclear situation in South Asia is far less dangerous and much more stable than it is generally given credit for Presenting a threefold case the author focuses on the impact of nuclear doctrines on stability a hitherto neglected aspect of the nuclear debate and argues that Indian and Pakistani doctrines reduce the pressures on the two nuclear forces Next he presents the view that the doctrines of the two countries lessen the likelihood of accidents and other dangers such as terrorists stealing nuclear weapons the crucial role played by political leaders and contends that political leaders tighten control over nuclear weapons in critical situations

Nuclear Proliferation in South Asia Sumit Ganguly,S. Paul Kapur,2008-08-06 This edited volume explores competing perspectives on the impact of nuclear weapons proliferation on the South Asian security environment The spread of nuclear weapons is one of the world s foremost security concerns The effect of nuclear weapons on the behaviour of newly nuclear states and the potential for future international crises are of particular concern As a region of burgeoning economic and political importance South Asia offers a crucial test of proliferation s effects on the crisis behaviour of newly nuclear states This volume creates a dialogue between scholars who believe that nuclear weapons have stabilized the subcontinent and those who believe that nuclear weapons have made South Asia more conflict prone It does so by pairing competing analyses of four major regional crises the 1987 Brasstacks crisis the Indo Pakistani crisis of 1990 the 1999 Kargil war which occurred after the nuclear tests and the 2001 2 Indo Pakistani militarized standoff In addition the volume explores the implications of the South Asian nuclear experience for potential new nuclear states such as North Korea and Iran

South Asia's Nuclear Security Dilemma Lowell Dittmer,2015-04-08 The nuclear test explosions in India and Pakistan in 1998 followed by the outbreak of hostilities over Kashmir in 1999 marked a frightening new turn in the ancient bitter enmity between the two nations. Although the tension was eclipsed by the events of 9/11 and the subsequent American attacks on Afghanistan and Iraq, it has not disappeared as evidenced by the 2001 attack in the Indian Parliament by Islamic fundamentalists from Kashmir. By 2002 these two nuclear armed neighbors seemed to be once again on the brink of war. This book outlines the strategic structure of the rivalry and the dynamic forces driving it and investigates various possible solutions. The expert contributors focus on the India-Pakistan rivalry but also consider the China factor in South Asia's nuclear security dilemma. Although essentially political-strategic in its approach, the book includes coverage of opposing military arsenals and the impact of local terrorism on the delicate balance of power. Nuclear South Asia Rajesh Rajagopalan, 2015-08-12. This dictionary provides a comprehensive and ready guide to the key concepts, issues, persons, and technologies related to the nuclear programmes of India and Pakistan and other South Asian states. This will serve as a useful reference, especially as the nuclear issue continues to be an important domestic and international policy concern. The Politics of Nuclear Weapons in South Asia Dr. Bhumitra Chakma, 2013-04-28. An important and critical re-evaluation of South Asia's post-tests nuclear politics. In contrast to other books, this volume emphasises the political dimension of South Asia's nuclear weapons, explains how the bombs are used as politico-strategic assets rather than pure battlefield weapons, and how India and Pakistan utilise them for politico-strategic purposes in an extremely complex and competitive South Asian strategic landscape. Written by a group of perceptive observers of South Asia, this volume evaluates the current state of Indo-Pakistani nuclear deterrents, the challenges that the two countries confront in building their nuclear forces, the post-test nuclear doctrines of the two strategic rivals, the implications of Indo-Pakistani politics for regional cooperation, the role of two systemic actors, USA and China, in the region's nuclear politics, and the critical issues of confidence building and nuclear arms control. Nuclearisation in South Asia R. K. Khilnani, 2000. Deals with various aspects of nuclearisation and weaponisation in South Asia and takes note of the security concerns for peace-keeping in Indian sub-continent. 10 chapters, index. South Asia's Nuclear Security Bhumitra Chakma, 2014-12-17. South Asia is often viewed as a potential nuclear flashpoint and a probable source of nuclear terrorism. But how valid are such perceptions? This book seeks to address this question and assesses the region's nuclear security from two principal standpoints. First, it evaluates the robustness of the Indo-Pakistani mutual deterrence by analysing the strength and weaknesses of the competing arguments regarding the issue. It also analyses the causes and consequences of nuclear arms race between India and Pakistan, the nature of deterrence structure in the region, and the challenges of confidence building and arms control between the two countries in order to assess the robustness of South Asia's nuclear deterrence. Second, it assesses the safety and security of the nuclear assets and nuclear infrastructure of India and Pakistan. The author holds that the debate on South Asia's nuclear security is largely misplaced because the optimists tend to overemphasise the stabilising effects of nuclear weapons, and the pessimists are too alarmists. It is argued that while the risks of nuclear weapons are significant it is unlikely that India and Pakistan will give up their nuclear arsenals in the foreseeable future. Therefore what needs to happen is that while nuclear elimination should be the long term goal in the interim years the two countries need to pursue minimum deterrence policies to reduce the likelihood of deterrence failure and the possibility of obtaining fissile materials by non state actors. Inside Nuclear South Asia Scott D. Sagan, 2009-08-17 Nuclear armed adversaries India and Pakistan have fought three wars since their creation as sovereign states in 1947. They went to the brink of a fourth in 2001 following an attack on the Indian parliament which the Indian government blamed on the Pakistan backed Lashkar e Taiba and Jaish e Mohammed terrorist organizations. Despite some attempts at rapprochement in the intervening years a new standoff between the two countries was precipitated when India accused Lashkar e Taiba of being behind the Mumbai attacks late last year. The relentlessness of the confrontations between these two nations makes Inside Nuclear South Asia a must read for anyone wishing to gain a thorough understanding of the spread of nuclear weapons in South Asia and the potential consequences of nuclear proliferation on the subcontinent. The book begins with an analysis of the factors that led to India's decision to cross the nuclear threshold in 1998 with Pakistan close behind factors such as the broad political support for a nuclear weapons program within India's ruling Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP), the intense rivalry between the two countries, the normative and prestige factors that influenced their behaviors and ultimately the perceived threat to their respective national security. The second half of the book analyzes the consequences of nuclear proliferation on the subcontinent. These chapters show that the presence of nuclear weapons in South Asia has increased the frequency and propensity of low level violence further destabilizing the region. Additionally nuclear weapons in India and Pakistan have led to serious political changes that also challenge the ability of the two states to produce stable nuclear détente. Thus this book provides both new insights into the domestic politics behind specific nuclear policy choices in South Asia, a critique of narrow realist views of nuclear proliferation and the dangers of nuclear proliferation in South Asia. Strategic Consequences of Nuclear Proliferation in South Asia Neil Joeck, 2025-04-01 Strategic Consequences of Nuclear Proliferation in South Asia 1986 examines the consequences for particular states should India and Pakistan decide to deploy nuclear weapons. It looks in detail at the positions of both India and Pakistan and the responses of the United States, the Soviet Union and China and their respective strategic positions. This book includes contributions on the larger question of how nuclear pariah states pose a separate problem of nuclear proliferation as well as on the broader challenges to the nuclear non proliferation regime.

The Consequences of Nuclear Proliferation Devin T. Hagerty, 1998 Hagerty analyzes how India and Pakistan interacted in diplomatic and military crises before their 1998 nuclear tests. He presents detailed studies of the January 1987 Indo Pakistani crisis precipitated by India's Brasstacks military exercises and the 1990 confrontation over Kashmir. Hagerty concludes that relations between India and Pakistan in recent years support the argument that nuclear proliferation does not necessarily destabilize international relations and may even reduce the risk of war. The Nuclear Shadow over South Asia, 1947 to the Present Kaushik Roy, 2017-03-02 This collection of seminal articles illustrates the reasons for the spiraling nuclear race in the Asian subcontinent and introduces the principal debates in the field. Authors discuss whether the acquisition of nuclear weapons by the South Asian powers has raised the likelihood of a nuclear war in the subcontinent or reduced the chance of a conventional war breaking out. They examine whether a small nuclear arsenal or a nuclear triad as declared by India is suitable for bringing stability to the region as well as the risk of an accidental nuclear conflagration. The first section charts the evolution of nuclear programmes on the basis of realpolitik and the second section analyses nuclear policies on the basis of religious and cultural ethos. A few essays turn the spotlight on the role of external powers in accelerating, decelerating and mediating the ongoing nuclear tension between India and Pakistan. Nuclear Weapons and Arms Control in South Asia After the Test Ban Eric H. Arnett, 1998 As the nuclear weapon states continue to reduce their nuclear arsenals and international efforts to prevent the proliferation of nuclear weapons are reinvigorated, South Asia remains a unique region almost entirely unencumbered by nuclear arms control. Despite the recent popularity of the notion that nuclear deterrence is stabilizing the Indo-Pakistani conflict, there is good reason to believe that the risks of war and the use of nuclear weapons are not fully appreciated. Nevertheless, the prospects for negotiated measures to improve the situation are not good because of the domestic politics on both sides. Nuclear Weapons and Arms Control in South Asia after the Test Ban sheds new light on the risks of the current stand-off, the hidden costs of the nuclear options and the domestic sources of the region's inertia, bringing together Indian, Pakistani and Chinese perspectives. Nuclear Proliferation Rodney W. Jones, 1981 Nuclear Risk Reduction in South Asia Michael Krepon, 2004-11-26 The essays in this collection explore and analyze how to reduce the risk of nuclear war in South Asia. Contributors work to introduce the theory and methodology of nuclear risk reduction to provide specific measures that might work best in the region and to consider the consequences of missile defense options for stability in Asia. Much work is needed to reduce nuclear dangers between India and Pakistan. While the fact that both countries possess nuclear weapons may prevent a full-blown conventional or nuclear war, the presence of these weapons in the region may also encourage the use of violence at lower levels, expecting escalation to be contained by a mutual desire to avoid the nuclear threshold. One only needs to look at the Kashmir conflict for confirmation of this paradox, with serious crises coming more frequently with more severity since the nuclear tests of 1998. Sustained efforts along the line suggested by the contributors of this volume are a crucial step toward reducing nuclear risk on the Subcontinent. Nuclear Deterrence in South Asia Rizwana Abbasi, Zafar Khan, 2019-06-25 This book explores evolving patterns of nuclear deterrence, the impact of new technologies and changing deterrent force postures in the South Asian region to assess future challenges for sustainable peace and stability. Under the core principles of the security dilemma, this book analyzes the prevailing security environment in South Asia and offers unilateral, bilateral and multilateral frameworks to stabilize peace and ensure deterrence stability in the South Asian region. Moreover, contending patterns of deterrence dynamics in the South Asian region are further elaborated as becoming inextricably interlinked with the broader security dynamics of the Asia Pacific region and the interactions with the United States and China's Belt and Road Initiative. As India and Pakistan are increasingly becoming part of the competing strategies exercised by the United States and China, the authors analyze how strategic uncertainty and fear faced by these rival states cause the introduction of new technologies which could gradually drift these competing states into more serious crises and military conflicts. Presenting innovative solutions to emerging South Asian challenges and offering new security mechanisms for sustainable peace and stability, this book will be of interest to academics and policymakers working on Asian Security studies, Nuclear Strategy, and International Relations.
