The Electrical Journal ,1923 Two Thousand Games Brian Horton,2020-08-24 Brian Horton is one of the most respected managers in English football As a player manager and assistant he took part in over 2 000 games in Britain only Sir Alex Ferguson can claim more Horton s career started in the World Cup summer of 1966 and ended over half a century later His playing career began unceremoniously when Port Vale bought him from non league Hednesford for the price of a pint of shandy But later as Brighton captain he became a club legend skippering the Seagulls from the Third to the

First Division He continued this success at Luton and Hull before managing the Yorkshire side Horton further distinguished himself as boss at Oxford and then Manchester City keeping the Citizens in the Premier League for two thrilling seasons Spells at Huddersfield Brighton Port Vale and Macclesfield followed before Brian was catapulted back to the Premier League at Hull City as assistant manager to Phil Brown He continued to work with Brown at Preston Southend and Swindon until his retirement in 2018

Bad Call Harry Collins, Robert Evans, Christopher Higgins, 2017-09-01 How technologies can get it wrong in sports and what the consequences are referees undermined fans heartbroken and the illusion of perfect accuracy maintained Good call or bad call referees and umpires have always had the final say in sports Bad calls are more visible plays are televised backward and forward and in slow motion New technologies the Hawk Eye system used in tennis and cricket for example and the goal line technology used in English football introduced to correct bad calls sometimes get it right and sometimes get it wrong but always undermine the authority of referees and umpires Bad Call looks at the technologies used to make refereeing decisions in sports analyzes them in action and explains the consequences Used well technologies can help referees reach the right decision and deliver justice for fans a fair match in which the best team wins Used poorly however decision making technologies pass off statements of probability as perfect accuracy and perpetuate a mythology of infallibility The authors re analyze three seasons of play in English Premier League football and discover that goal line technology was irrelevant so many crucial wrong decisions were made that different teams should have won the Premiership advanced to the Champions League and been relegated Simple video replay could have prevented most of these bad calls Major League baseball learned this lesson introducing expanded replay after a bad call cost Detroit Tigers pitcher Armando Galarraga a perfect game What matters in sports is not computer generated projections of ball position but what is seen by the human eye reconciling what the sports fan sees and what the game official sees
