Bowker Company. Department of Bibliography, 1978 Plays for Poem-Mimes (Classic Reprint) Alfred Kreymborg, 2017-09-16 Excerpt from Plays for Poem Mimes Plays for Poem Mimes might be defined as panto mime acting or dancing of folk or automatons to an accompaniment of rhythmic lines in place of music. In view of the fact that in all these experiments the characters speak with the exception of the children in When The Willow Nods the wife in Jack's House and the shadows in Blue and Green little more than a semi dance of gesture can be added by them to their delivery of the lines but free dancing might be indulged during the interludes of silence. It is imperative that the reading tempo and the introduction of pantomiming shall adhere to the sense connotation rather than the rhythm of the lines. I have to make this small excursion into the realm of professorial instruction because the good people who have been kind as well as the good people who have been unkind to what is commonly and erroneously termed free verse have slipped into the error of scanning rather than of feeling the line divisions I offered in Mushrooms. If homogeneity of some sort exists in the present experiments possibly it runs through the general undercurrent which carries words, silences and pantomiming along the musician's term for which is organ point. I duly urge my apology for these ejaculations especially as that benign entity contradiction between an author's preface and production is cer.
