

How Entrepreneurs Create, Control, and Retain Wealth Without Venture Capital

NOTHING
VENTURED,
EVERYTHING GAINED

A silhouette of a person climbing a mountain peak, planting a flag. The person is positioned on the right side of the peak, leaning forward and holding a flagpole with a red flag. The mountain is dark and jagged, contrasting with the lighter, hazy sky.

Rose, 2013-07-24 The late nineteenth century was a golden age for European travel in the United States For prosperous Europeans a journey to America was a fresh alternative to the more familiar Grand Tour of their own continent promising encounters with a vast wild landscape and with people whose culture was similar enough to their own to be intelligible yet different enough to be interesting Their observations of America and its inhabitants provide a striking lens on this era of American history and a fascinating glimpse into how the people of the past perceived one another In Unspeakable Awfulness Kenneth D Rose gathers together a broad selection of the observations made by European travellers to the United States European visitors remarked upon what they saw as a distinctly American approach to everything from class politics and race to language food and advertising Their assessments of the American character continue to echo today and create a full portrait of late nineteenth century America as seen through the eyes of its visitors Including vivid travellers tales and plentiful illustrations Unspeakable Awfulness is a rich resource that will be useful to students and appeal to anyone interested in travel history and narratives
