book develops a new corpus stylistic approach for systematically analyzing the different narrative strategies of discourse presentation in key pieces of 19th century narrative fiction Speech Writing and Thought Presentation in 19th Century Narrative Fiction identifies diachronic patterns as well as unique authorial styles and places them within their cultural historical context It also suggests ways for automatically identifying forms of discourse presentation and shows that the presentation of characters minds reflects an ideological as well as an epistemological concern about what cannot be reported portrayed or narrated Through insightful interdisciplinary analysis Busse demonstrates that discourse presentation fulfills the function of prospection and encapsulation marks narrative progression and shapes readers expectations

The Orphan in Fiction and Comics since the 19th Century Marion Gymnich, Barbara Puschmann-Nalenz, Gerold Sedlmayr, 2018-07-27 The orphan has turned out to be an extraordinarily versatile literary figure By juxtaposing diverse fictional representations of orphans this volume sheds light on the development of cultural concepts such as childhood family the status of parental legacy individualism identity and charity The first chapter argues that the figure of the orphan was suitable for negotiating a remarkable range of cultural anxieties and discourses in novels from the Victorian period This is followed by a discussion of both the rare examples of novels from the first half of the 20th century in which main characters are orphaned at a young age and Anglophone narratives written from the 1980s onward when the figure of the orphan proliferated once more The trope of the picaresque the theme of absence and the problem of parental substitutes are among the issues addressed in contemporary orphan narratives The book also looks at the orphan motif in three popular fantasy series namely Rowling's Harry Potter septology Pullman's His Dark Materials trilogy and Martin's A Song of Ice and Fire series It then traces the development of the orphan motif from the end of the 19th century to the present in a range of different types of comics including funnies and gag a day strips superhero comics underground comix and autobiographical comics

Text Types and the History of English Manfred Görlach,2008-08-22 The history of modern European languages has been largely determined by the range of functions they have acquired particularly after 1500 This development necessitated a notable expansion of their syntax and lexis but is most characteristically reflected in the conventionalization of text types Starting from the German concept of Textsorte as developed from the 1960s onwards the present account is a first comprehensive attempt at charting the field for the history and present day situation of the English language In text types a designation is linked with a more or less stable form which guides the writer's production as well as the reader's expectation permitting one to recognize straightforward uses as well as deliberate misuses. Some two thousand of such designations are here listed with minimal definitions and dates for first occurrences. The discussion then concentrates on selected types which are seen as especially illustrative for English: book dedications, cooking recipes, advertisements, church hymns, lexical entries, and jokes. Their functions and development over time are treated in correlation with their specific linguistic characteristics and adaptations to different period styles and social changes in the readership. The functional range of text types in traditions outside England and the consequences of the export of English categories are exemplified by the history of Scots, Scottish English, and of English in India. The arguments are accompanied by a lavish supply of textual excerpts and more than fifty pages of facsimiles which are especially relevant for insights derived from typographical features. A full bibliography and indices are provided at the end. The book will prove useful for decisions on the constitution of representative text corpora and stimulate research into a greater number of individual text types as well as contrastive analyses at least among European languages.
