International Law and the Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction Daniel Joyner, 2009 Proliferation of WMD technologies is by no means a new concern for the international community Indeed since the signing of the Nuclear Non proliferation Treaty in 1968 tremendous energies have been expended upon diplomatic efforts to create a web of treaties and international organisations regulating the production and stockpiling of WMD sensitive materials within states as well as their spread through the increasingly globalised channels of international trade to other states and non state actors However the intervention in 2003 by Western powers in Iraq has served as an illustration of the importance of greater understanding of and attention to this area of law as disagreements over its content and application have once again lead to a potentially destabilising armed intervention by members of the United Nations into the sovereign territory of another member state Other ongoing disputes between states regarding the character of obligations assumed under non proliferation treaty instruments and the effect of international organisations decisions in this area form some of the most contentious and potentially destabilising issues of foreign policy concern for many states This book provides a comprehensive analysis of international law and organisations in the area of WMD proliferation It will serve both as a reference for understanding the law as it currently exists in its political and economic context as well as an analysis of areas in which amendments to existing law and organisations are needed

At the Nuclear Precipice D. Nuclear Test Ban Ola Dahlman, S. Mykkeltveit, Hein Haak, 2009-04-21

Nuclear tests have caused public concern ever since the first such test was conducted more than six decades ago During the Cold War however con tions were not conducive to discussing a complete ban on nuclear testing It was not until 1993 that negotiations on such a treaty finally got under way From then on things moved relatively quickly in 1996 the United Nations General Assembly adopted the Comprehensive Nuclear Test Ban Treaty CTBT To date the Treaty has been signed by 178 states and ratified by 144 though it has yet to enter into force as nine out of 44 Annex 2 states whose ratification is mandatory have not heeded the call Nevertheless the CTBT verification system is already provisionally operational and has proven its effectiveness We commend the CTBT organisation in Vienna for its successful efforts to build a verification network This book is an excellent overview of the evolution of the CTBT and its verification regime The authors are eminent scholars from the Netherlands Norway and Sweden who have been intimately involved with the CTBT and its verification agency the CTBTO Preparatory Commission from their inc tion to the present day They have written a thorough and engaging narrative of the long road that led to the CTBT Their story will appeal to both the layman and the expert and provide useful lessons for future negotiations on disarmament issues

America and the World: The Double Bind Kevin P. Clements, 2017-07-05

As the world s first democracy with a written constitution and Bill of Rights the United States has stood for global aspirations toward democratic liberty equality and solidarity since its formation in 1776 However as it developed into an empire by the late nineteenth century the United States also has threatened the liberties of other peoples including Native Americans Hawaiians Latin Americans Asians and Africans The American role in world affairs has long been polarized around two conflicting images and strategies In the name of counter terrorism the Bush administration pursued a largely unilateralist policy in the Middle East and elsewhere Yet in the name of protecting its national sovereignty the United States also has rejected most of the recent multilateral treaties that strive to contain violence by fortifying the rule of international law A unilateralist strategy also goes largely against the U S postwar multilateralism which established the United Nations and its specialized agencies This volume explores these contradictions Contributors include Kevin P Clements Tom Coffman Audrey Kitagawa Jeffrey F Addicott Steven Zunes Vivien Stewart Kathy Ferguson Phyllis Turnbull Bilveer Singh Ibrahim G Aoude Richard Falk Ann Wright Beverley Kleever Linda Groff George Kent Majid Tehranian Mohammad Ali Terrence Paupp Gillian Young Mihay Simaii and David Krieger The annual publication Peace Policy sponsored by the Toda Institute for Global Peace and Policy Research is now in its ninth year It is dedicated to providing a forum for the discussion of all issues concerning peace policy and the rights and responsibilities of global citizenship This latest volume fulfills that commitment
