Please Understand Me II:

Please Understand Me II David Keirsey, 1998 For the past twenty years Keirsey has continued to investigate personality differences to refine his theory of the four temperaments and to define the facets of character that distinguish one from another His findings form the basis of Please Understand Me II an updated and greatly expanded edition of the book far more comprehensive and coherent than the original and yet with much of the same easy accessibility One major addition is Keirsey's view of how the temperaments differ in the intelligent roles they are most likely to develop Each of us he says has four kinds of intelligence tactical logistical diplomatic strategic though one of the four interests us far more than the others and thus gets far more practice than the rest Like four suits in a hand of cards we each have a long suit and a short suit in what interests us and what we do well and fortunate indeed are those whose work matches their skills As in the original book Please Understand Me II begins with The Keirsey Temperament Sorter the most used personality inventory in the world But also included is The Keirsey Four Types Sorter a new short questionnaire that identifies one's basic temperament and then ranks one's second third and fourth choices Share this new sorter with friends and family and get set for a lively and fascinating discussion of personal styles

Risk and Resolution R. Greg Brown, 2019-05-20 America repeatedly finds itself mired in military interventions long after public buy in to the national interest has waned Why is the timely disengagement of military forces so difficult to achieve Traditional international relations theories diminish the role of the individual leader in favor of the state or international institutions Behavioral science theories have in recent years experienced a resurgence However the dominant behavioral explanation of foreign policy decision making prospect theory while it focuses on how people tend to make decisions under risk still minimizes the influence of the individual president Decisions to disengage military forces are presidential decisions just like the decisions to commit forces to foreign interventions If we accept this then it is important to understand if and if so why some presidents inherently are more or less acceptant of the risks disengagement presents This book operationalizes a competing personality based model of decision making under risk Referred to here as the trait based model it is assessed using disengagement opportunities in three varied levels of military intervention across four presidencies humanitarian relief turned nation building under George H W Bush and Bill Clinton in Somalia compelling air campaigns turned peace making keeping in Bosnia and Kosovo under Clinton and major combat operations turned irregular warfare in Iraq under George W Bush and Barack Obama Data for the model predominantly comes from existing presidential personality profiles based on the dominant model of personality theory the five factor model augmented by Myers Briggs Type Inventory data from public sources This study aims to explain the roughly 30 percent of cases which defy prospect theory's predictions and to better explain those cases where prospect theory might heretofore have sufficed The results suggest specific personality traits do in fact point to presidents' predispositions toward risk which in turn help explain their disengagement decisions This work may be only the second to apply the five factor model to presidential foreign policy decision making and is the first to do so in the context of disengagement decisions Hopefully it will foster further work in both areas
