

A black and white photograph of a person, likely a woman, sitting in a field of tall grass and wildflowers. She is wearing a dark jacket over a light-colored shirt and is looking down at a book or notebook she is holding. The background shows a body of water, possibly a lake or a wide river, and rolling hills under a bright sky. The overall scene is peaceful and naturalistic.

Nature Conservation in Britain John Sheail, 1998 In reviewing the first half century of official involvement in nature conservation this book offers insight into changing attitudes towards town countryside and coast and trends in ecological thinking and practical land use management It explains how nature conservation had achieved such stature within the wider environmental movement The text should be of interest to environmentalists and those with a professional academic leisure interest in the outdoors

A History of Nature Conservation in Britain David Evans, 2002-11 This 2nd and fully revised edition offers insights into the campaign for countryside access and protection and considers topical concerns afresh It examines unwelcome choices for the future and Britain's role in the global conservation debate

Nature conservation in Britain John Sheail, 1983

An Environmental History of Twentieth-Century Britain John Sheail, 2017-03-14 Environmental history the history of the relationship between people and the natural world is a dynamic and increasingly important field In An Environmental History of Twentieth Century Britain John Sheail breaks new ground in illustrating how some of the most pressing concerns came to be recognised and a response made Much use is made of archival sources in tracing a number of key issues including Management of change by central and local government The manner in which natural processes were incorporated in projects to protect personal and public health and ultimately environmental health New beginnings in forestry The emergence of a third force alongside farming and forestry in the countryside Management of a transport revolution and mitigation of environmental hazards Such instances of policy making are reviewed within the wider context of a growing awareness both on the part of government and business of the role of environmental issues in the creation of wealth and social well being for us all An Environmental History of Twentieth Century Britain is essential reading for all those concerned with these issues

Future Nature W.M. Adams, 2004-04-26 The countryside is changing faster than ever Fifty years of conservation achievements in the UK are now being confronted by a new complexion of economic forces that are driving change in the countryside At the same time new ideas in conservation are altering the role that conservation is being asked to play in negotiating the transition from past to future This revised edition of Bill Adams classic work Future Nature tackles the new challenges in the countryside and wildlife conservation head on through a new Introduction and Postscript with updated arguments about naturalness and our social engagement with nature and complemented by a new Foreword by Adrian Phillips Concepts such as biodiversity and sustainability and changes in our understanding appreciation and concern for nature offer unprecedented opportunities Bill Adams explores the scientific cultural and economic significance of conservation He argues that conservation must move beyond the boundaries of parks and reserves to embrace the whole countryside The importance of conservation for the future is enormous It holds the potential to create new spaces for nature both in the landscape and in our lives and imaginations

This factual beautifully written and thought provoking book offers a fundamental reassessment of conservation its importance and how to achieve it Published with BANC Exploring Environmental History T. C Smout,2011-08-16 This volume brings together the best of T C Smout s recent articles and contributions to books and journals on the topic of environmental history Histories of Technology, the Environment and Modern Britain Jon Agar,Jacob Ward,2018-04-09 Histories of Technology the Environment and Modern Britain brings together historians with a wide range of interests to take a uniquely wide lens view of how technology and the environment have been intimately and irreversibly entangled in Britain over the last 300 years It combines for the first time two perspectives with much to say about Britain since the industrial revolution the history of technology and environmental history Technologies are modified environments just as nature is to varying extents engineered Furthermore technologies and our living and non living environment are both predominant material forms of organisation and self organisation that surround and make us Both have changed over time in intersecting ways Technologies discussed in the collection include bulldozers submarine cables automobiles flood barriers medical devices museum displays and biotechnologies Environments investigated include bogs cities farms places of natural beauty and pollution land and sea The book explores this diversity but also offers an integrated framework for understanding these intersections Conserving European Biodiversity in the Context of Climate Change Michael B. Usher,Council of Europe. Committee for the Activities of the Council of Europe in the field of Biological and Landscape Diversity,2007-01-01 Climate change is likely to have major environmental effects on natural habitats in the next fifty years Conservation of biological diversity will have to be modified drastically to avoid massive extinctions of species of threatened habitat types Precise recommendations are made to governments and conservation agencies that collaborate in the framework of the Bern Convention This publication provides a starting point for discussion about possible adaptation strategies if Europe s biodiversity is to be conserved Planning for the Planet Simone Schleper,2019-07-12 During the 1960s and 1970s rapidly growing environmental awareness and concern created unprecedented demand for ecological expertise and novel challenges for ecological advocacy groups such as the International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources IUCN This book reveals how despite their vast scientific knowledge and their attempts to incorporate socially relevant themes IUCN experts inevitably struggled to make global schemes for nature conservation a central concern for UNESCO UNEP and other intergovernmental organizations Shades of Green Ruth Tittensor,2016-10-31 This book takes a fresh look at the most disliked tree in Britain and Ireland explaining the reasons it was introduced and why it became ubiquitous in the archipelagos of northwest Europe Sitka spruce has contributed to the Pacific Coast landscapes of North America for over ten millennia For the Tlingit First Nation it is the most important tree in terms of spiritual relationships art and products in daily use such as canoes containers fish traps and sweet cakes Since the late nineteenth century it has also been the most important tree to the timber industry of west coast North America The historical background to the modern use of Sitka spruce is explored The lack of cultural reference may explain negative public response when treeless uplands in the UK and Ireland were afforested with introduced conifer species particularly Sitka spruce following two World Wars The multipurpose forestry of today recognizes that Sitka spruce is the most important tree to the timber industry and to a public which uses its many products but fails to recognize the link between growing trees and bought goods The apparently featureless and wildlife less Sitka spruce plantations in UK uplands are gradually developing recognizable ecological features Sitka spruce has the potential to form temperate rain forests this century as well as to produce much needed goods for society The major contribution of Sitka spruce to landscapes and livelihoods in western North America is by contrast widely accepted But conserving natural old growth forests sustaining the needs of First Nations and producing materials for the modern timber industry will be an intricate task

Urban Planning and Real Estate Development John Ratcliffe, Michael Stubbs, Miles Keeping, 2009-01-19 The twin processes of planning and property development are inextricably linked it is not possible to carry out a development strategy without an understanding of the planning process and equally planners need to know how real estate developers do their job This third edition of Urban Planning and Real Estate Development guides students through the procedural and practical aspects of developing land from the point of view of both planner and developer The planning system is explained from the increasing emphasis on spatial planning at a regional level down to the detailed perspective of the development control process and the specialist requirements of historic buildings and conservation areas At the same time the authors explain the entire development process from inception through appraisal valuation and financing to completion and disposal This is an invaluable textbook for real estate and planning students and helps to meet the requirements of the RICS and RTPI Assessment of Professional Competence

Nature's Diplomats Raf De Bont, 2021-05-11 Nature's Diplomats explores the development of science based and internationally conceived nature protection in its foundational years before the 1960s the decade when it launched from obscurity onto the global stage Raf De Bont studies a movement while it was still in the making and its groups were still rather small revealing the geographies of the early international preservationist groups their social composition self perception ethos and predilections their ideals and strategies and the natures they sought to preserve By examining international efforts to protect migratory birds the threatened European bison and the mountain gorilla in the interior of the Belgian Congo Nature's Diplomats sheds new light on the launch of major international organizations for nature protection in the aftermath of World War II Additionally it covers how the rise of ecological science the advent of the Cold War and looming decolonization forced a rethinking of approach and rhetoric and how old ideas and practices lingered on It provides much needed historical context for present day convictions about and approaches to the preservation of species and the conservation of natural resources the involvement of local communities in conservation projects the fate of extinct species and vanished habitats and the management of global nature

Arts and Minds Anton Howes,2023-05-16 For almost 300 years an organisation has quietly tried to change almost every aspect of life in Britain That organisation is the Royal Society for the Encouragement of Arts Manufactures and Commerce often known simply as the Royal Society of Arts It has acted as Britain's private national improvement agency in every way imaginable essentially a society for the improvement of everything and anything This book is its history From its beginnings in a coffee house in the mid eighteenth century the Society has tried to change Britain's art industry laws music environment education and even culture It has sometimes even succeeded It has been a prize fund for innovations a platform for Victorian utilitarian reformers a convenor of disparate interest groups and the focal point for social movements There has never been an organisation quite like it constantly having to reinvent itself to find something new to improve The book rewrites many of the old official histories of the Society and updates them to the present day incorporating over half a century of further research into the periods they covered along with new insights into the organisation's evolution The book reveals the hidden and often surprising history of how a few public spirited people tried to make their country better offering lessons from their triumphs and their failures for all would be reformers today

Local Places, Global Processes Peter Coates, David Moon, Paul Warde, 2016-02-29 We live in an age of unprecedented environmental change global interconnected and universal Yet though our lives are inextricably connected to global processes and increasingly mobile we still live in particular places Our perceptions of change and what kind of change might be for good or ill are shaped by the interaction of localised experience and the wider forces of transformation Local Places Global Processes examines how these relationships have been shaped in Britain over time in three ways First through essays addressing influential ways of understanding and debating questions of the state of nature These are complemented by case studies on conservation landscape change and management and how perceptions of environmental change have emerged or been discarded over time Chapters also draw on a series of site based workshops that brought together historians landscape managers and artists to discuss and reflect on particular sites Wicken Fen in Cambridgeshire owned by the National Trust and the first British nature reserve the Quantock Hills Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty in Somerset England's first AONB and a landscape enriched by Romantic association and the landscape of Kielder Water and Forest a land of superlatives in Northumberland in north eastern England the largest planted forest and artificial lake in northern Europe The multi disciplinary approach draws together the exchanges artworks and writing assembled at these workshops and afterwards This opens up how being in a place and engaging with ideas attached to it shape perceptions of the environment It provides resources with which landscape managers can think about their tasks and engage various publics in discussion about future environments in light of these histories of place Rather than a history of these three places this is history written from them
