The Nature of Mathematical Thinking Robert J. Sternberg, Talia Ben-Zeev, 2012-10-12 Why do some children seem to learn mathematics easily and others slave away at it learning it only with great effort and apparent pain Why are some people good at algebra but terrible at geometry How can people who successfully run a business as adults have been failures at math in school How come some professional mathematicians suffer terribly when trying to balance a checkbook And why do school children in the United States perform so dismally in international comparisons These are the kinds of real questions the editors set out to answer or at least address in editing this book on mathematical thinking Their goal was to seek a diversity of contributors representing multiple viewpoints whose expertise might converge on the answers to these and other pressing and interesting questions regarding this subject The chapter authors were asked to focus on their own approach to mathematical thinking but also to address a common core of issues such as the nature of mathematical thinking how it is similar to and different from other kinds of thinking what makes some people or some groups better than others in this subject area and how mathematical thinking can be assessed and taught Their work is directed to a diverse audience psychologists interested in the nature of mathematical thinking and abilities computer scientists who want to simulate mathematical thinking educators involved in teaching and testing mathematical thinking philosophers who need to understand the qualitative aspects of logical thinking anthropologists and others interested in how and why mathematical thinking seems to differ in quality across cultures and laypeople and others who have to think mathematically and want to understand how they are going to accomplish that feat The Nature and Role of Algebra in the K-14 Curriculum National Research Council, National Council of Teachers of Mathematics and Mathematical Sciences Education Board, Center for Science, Mathematics, and Engineering Education, 1998-10-23 With the 1989 release of Everybody Counts by the Mathematical Sciences Education Board MSEB of the National Research Council and the Curriculum and Evaluation Standards for School Mathematics by the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics NCTM the standards movement in K 12 education was launched Since that time the MSEB and the NCTM have remained committed to deepening the public debate discourse and understanding of the principles and implications of standards based reform One of the main tenets in the NCTM Standards is commitment to providing high quality mathematical experiences to all students Another feature of the Standards is emphasis on development of specific mathematical topics across the grades In particular the Standards emphasize the importance of algebraic thinking as an essential strand in the elementary school curriculum Issues related to school algebra are pivotal in many ways Traditionally algebra in high school or earlier has been considered a gatekeeper critical to participation in postsecondary education especially for minority students Yet as traditionally taught first year algebra courses have been characterized as an unmitigated disaster for most students There have been many shifts in the algebra curriculum in schools within recent years Some of these have been successful first steps in increasing enrollment in algebra and in broadening the scope of the algebra curriculum Others have compounded existing problems Algebra is not yet conceived of as a K 14 subject Issues of opportunity and equity persist Because there is no one answer to the dilemma of how to deal with algebra making progress requires sustained dialogue experimentation reflection and communication of ideas and practices at both the local and national levels As an initial step in moving from national level dialogue and speculations to concerted local and state level work on the role of algebra in the curriculum the MSEB and the NCTM co sponsored a national symposium The Nature and Role of Algebra in the K 14 Curriculum on May 27 and 28 1997 at the National Academy of Sciences in Washington D C
