Bahr, 2004-06-24 The Navajo as Seen by the Franciscans is the story of one of the great cultural confluences in American history the coming of Franciscan missionaries to the Navajo people Here in the words of the friars who lived it is part of that remarkable story Utilizing both primary and secondary materials this sourcebook aims to make more readily accessible the views of the Franciscans both in their personal writings and in national publications and mission magazines addressing the Catholic laity and potential donors Selections include internal reports and position papers not intended for publication diaries and personal correspondence and notes and unfinished drafts Each text is introduced by the editor and has been carefully selected for inclusion to provide a comprehensive view of the Navajo of the late 19th and early 20th century as well as insights into those that served them as teachers advocates counselors and medical missionaries Because most Franciscan missionaries came to live among the Navajo for their entire lives their primary commitment was neither to science nor to publication for their academic peers but to the welfare both here and in the hereafter of those among whom they served allowing for a complex and mutually beneficial relationship between the two This volume covers the remarkably productive first decades of the Franciscan missions to the Navajo during the ministry of Father Anselm Weber from the arrival of the first missionaries in 1898 to Fr Anselm s passing in 1921 Its 43 chapters are divided into six parts Beginnings Indian Policy

Early Ministry 1901 1910 Navajo Land Among the People 1911 1920 and Navajo Customs and Character Supplemented by 16 rare black and white photographs this reference work is a fascinating glance into the lives of two cultures forever changed by each other Wastelanding Traci Brynne Voyles, 2015-05-15 Wastelanding tells the history of the uranium industry on Navajo land in the U S Southwest asking why certain landscapes and the peoples who inhabit them come to be targeted for disproportionate exposure to environmental harm Uranium mines and mills on the Navajo Nation land have long supplied U S nuclear weapons and energy programs By 1942 mines on the reservation were the main source of uranium for the top secret Manhattan Project Today the Navajo Nation is home to more than a thousand abandoned uranium sites Radiation related diseases are endemic claiming the health and lives of former miners and nonminers alike Traci Brynne Voyles argues that the presence of uranium mining on Din Navajo land constitutes a clear case of environmental racism Looking at discursive constructions of landscapes she explores how environmental racism develops over time For Voyles the wasteland where toxic materials are excavated exploited and dumped is both a racial and a spatial signifier that renders an environment and the bodies that inhabit it pollutable Because environmental inequality is inherent in the way industrialism operates the wasteland is the other through which modern industrialism is established In examining the history of wastelanding in Navajo country Voyles provides an environmental justice history of uranium mining revealing how just as civilization has been defined on and through savagery environmental privilege is produced by portraying other landscapes as marginal worthless and pollutable The Frontier Army in the Settlement of the West Michael L.
