Passages Welcome Home To Canada:

Passages ,2011-01-28 Foreword by Michael Ignatieff Preface by Rudyard Griffiths The Dominion Institute Without departure there is no arrival this is the experience of some of Canada's best known migr authors and public figures shared in Passages Welcome Home to Canada In first hand accounts these celebrated writers explore the excitement and anguish of uprooting to a new country Childhood memories familiar streets the aromas of local cooking long cherished plans to leave all this behind can only be traumatic And yet to find a haven from oppression and danger a place to carve out a new identity and put down new roots this is a thrill only an emigrant can know In Passages we see this terrible pain and once in a lifetime opportunity for growth in delicate balance Alberto Manguel discovers the quiet pleasure of citizenship after years of cosmopolitan wandering Ken Wiwa looks for a fresh start far from the shadow of his martyred father in Africa Nino Ricci having grown up in an old world Italian community transplanted to rural Ontario describes his passage into the larger world where other families don't bake their own bread or slaughter their own pigs Shyam Selvadurai tells of his flight from the intolerance of his native Sri Lanka where as a Tamil and a homosexual he found himself unwelcome Moses Znaimer describes his parents hair raising escape first from Hitler and then Stalin a series of adventures through Eastern Europe and Central Asia and finally across the Atlantic Introduced by Michael Ignatieff Passages explores what it means to be a foreigner what it means to be a writer and what it means to be a Canadian and what it means to be all three at once Contributors Michelle Berry Ying Chen Brian D Johnson Dany Laferriere Alberto Manguel Anna Porter Nino Ricci Shyam Selvadurai M G Vassanji Ken Wiwa Moses Znaimer     The Cambridge Companion to Canadian Literature Eva-Marie Kröller,2004-02-05 This book offers a comprehensive and lively introduction to major writers genres and topics in Canadian literature Addressing traditional assumptions and current issues contributors pay attention to the social political and economic developments that have informed literary events Broad surveys of fiction drama and poetry are complemented by chapters on Aboriginal writing autobiography literary criticism writing by women and the emergence of urban writing in a country historically defined by its regions Also discussed are genres that have a special place in Canadian literature such as nature writing exploration and travel writing and short fiction Although the emphasis is on literature in English a substantial chapter on francophone writing is included     Translating Canada Luise von Flotow,Reingard M. Nischik,2007-10-25 In the last thirty years of the twentieth century Canadian federal governments offered varying degrees of support for literary and other artistic endeavour A corollary of this patronage of culture at home was an effort to make the resulting works available for audiences elsewhere in the world Current developments in the study of translation and its influence as cultural transfer have made possible new assessments of such efforts to project a national image abroad Translating Canada examines cultural materials exported by Canada in addition to those selected for acquisition by German publishers theatres and other culture brokers It also considers the motivations of particular translators and the reception by German reviewers of works by a wide variety of

Canadian writers novelists and poets playwrights and children s authors literary and social critics Above all the book maps for its readers a number of significant though frequently unsuspected roles that translation assumes in the intercultural negotiation of national images and values The chapters in this collection will be of value to students teachers and scholars in a number of fields Informed lay readers too will appreciate the authors insights into the different ways in which translation has contributed to German reception of Canadian books and culture

Toronto Trailblazers Ruth Panofsky, 2019-09-12 The first ever study of women in Canadian publishing Toronto Trailblazers delves into the cultural influence of seven key women who despite pervasive gender bias helped advance a modern literary culture for Canada Publisher Irene Clarke scholarly editors Eleanor Harman and Frances Halpenny trade editors Sybil Hutchinson Claire Pratt and Anna Porter and literary agent Bella Pomer made the most of their vocational prospects first by securing their respective positions and then by refining their professional methods Individually each woman asserted her agency by adapting orthodox ways of working within Canadian publishing Collectively and perhaps more importantly their overarching approach emerged more broadly as a feminist practice Guided by the resolve to make industry wide improvements these women disrupted the dominant masculine paradigm and reinvigorated the culture of publishing and authorship in Canada Through their vision and method these trailblazing women became agents of change who helped transform publishing practice

Who We are Rudyard Griffiths, 2009 Canadians have come to embrace their country as a postmodern state a nation that downplays its history and makes few demands on its citizens allowing them to find their allegiances where they may in their region their ethnic heritage or the language they speak The notion of a Canadian national identity with shared responsibilities and a common purpose is considered out of date even a disadvantage in a borderless world of transnational economies resurgent regions and global immigration In his timely and provocative book Who We Are Rudyard Griffiths argues that this vision of Canada is an intellectual and practical dead end Without a strong national identity and robust Canadian civic values and engagement the country will be hard pressed to meet the daunting challenges that lie ahead the social costs of an aging population the unavoidable effects of global warming and the fallout of a dysfunctional immigration system What's needed is a rediscovery of the founding principles that made Canada the nation it is today core values that can form a civic creed for our own times In a passionate call to revitalize our shared Canadian citizenship Griffiths reminds us of who we are and what we've accomplished
