Missed Information David Sarokin, Jay Schulkin, 2017-09-01 How better information and better access to it improves the quality of our decisions and makes for a more vibrant participatory society Information is power It drives commerce protects nations and forms the backbone of systems that range from health care to high finance Yet despite the avalanche of data available in today s information age neither institutions nor individuals get the information they truly need to make well informed decisions Faulty information and sub optimal decision making create an imbalance of power that is exaggerated as governments and corporations amass enormous databases on each of us Who has more power the government in possession of uncounted terabytes of data some of it obtained by cybersnooping or the ordinary citizen trying to get in touch with a government agency In Missed Information David Sarokin and Jay Schulkin explore information not information technology

but information itself as a central part of our lives and institutions They show that providing better information and better access to it improves the quality of our decisions and makes for a more vibrant participatory society Sarokin and Schulkin argue that freely flowing information helps systems run more efficiently and that incomplete information does just the opposite It s easier to comparison shop for microwave ovens than for doctors or hospitals because of information gaps that hinder the entire health care system Better information about such social ills as child labor and pollution can help consumers support more sustainable products The authors examine the opacity of corporate annual reports the impenetrability of government secrets and emerging techniques of information foraging The information imbalance of power can be reconfigured they argue with greater and more meaningful transparency from government and corporations ABA Journal ,1998-03 The ABA Journal serves the legal profession Qualified recipients are lawyers and judges law students law librarians and associate members of the American Bar Association BNA's Patent, Trademark & Copyright Journal ,2005-05
