Transforming Women's Work Thomas L. Dublin, 2018-07-05 I am not living upon my friends or doing housework for my board but am a factory girl asserted Anna Mason in the early 1850s Although many young women who worked in the textile mills found that the industrial revolution brought greater independence to their lives most working women in nineteenth century New England did not according to Thomas Dublin Sketching engaging portraits of women s experience in cottage industries factories domestic service and village schools Dublin demonstrates that the autonomy of working women actually diminished as growing numbers lived with their families and contributed their earnings to the household From diaries letters account books and censuses Dublin reconstructs employment patterns across the century as he shows how wage work increasingly came to serve the needs of families rather than of individual women He first examines the case of rural women engaged in the cottage industries of weaving and palm leaf hatmaking between 1820 and 1850 Next he compares the employment experiences of women in the textile mills of Lowell and the shoe factories of Lynn Following a discussion of Boston working women in the middle decades of the century particularly domestic servants and garment workers Dublin turns his attention to the lives of women teachers in three New Hampshire towns Learning by Doing in Markets, Firms, and Countries Naomi R. Lamoreaux, Daniel M. G. Raff, Peter Temin, 2007-11-01 Learning by Doing in Markets Firms and Countries draws out the underlying economics in business history by focusing on learning processes and the development of competitively valuable asymmetries The essays show that organizations like people learn that this process can be organized more or less effectively which can have major implications for how competition works The first three essays in this volume explore techniques firms have used to both manage information to create valuable asymmetries and to otherwise suppress unwelcome competition The next three focus on the ways in which firms have built special capabilities over time capabilities that have been both sources of competitive advantage and resistance to new opportunities The last two extend the notion of learning from the level of firms to that of nations The collection as a whole builds on the previous two volumes to make the connection between information structure and product market outcomes in business history Early American
