Stephen D. Krashen,1981 On the Monitor Theory of adult second language acquisition Learning a Second Language through Interaction Rod Ellis,1999-12-15

This book examines different theoretical perspectives on the role that interaction plays in second language acquisition The principal perspectives are those afforded by the Interaction Hypothesis Socio Cultural Theory and the Levels of Processing model Interaction is therefore defined broadly it is seen as involving both intermental and intramental activity The theoretical perspectives are explored empirically in a series of studies which investigate the relationship between aspects of interaction and second language acquisition A number of these studies consider the effects of interaction on the acquisition of vocabulary word meanings by both adult and child L2 learners In addition the effects of language aptitude on input processing are considered Further studies consider the contribution that interaction makes to the acquisition of grammatical knowledge These studies provide clear evidence that social and intermental interaction are major forces in the acquisition of an L2 Finally the book considers a number of pedagogic specifications In particular the importance of discourse control as a means of learners obtaining the quality of interaction likely to foster acquisition is discussed The Age Factor in Second Language Acquisition

David Michael Singleton,Zsolt Lengyel,1995-01-01 This book takes a hard look at some of the assumptions that are customarily made concerning the role of age in second language acquisition The evidence and arguments the contributors present run counter to the notion that an early start in second language learning is of itself either absolutely sufficient or necessary for the attainment of native like mastery of a second language Another theme of the book is a doubt that there is a particular stage of maturity beyond which language learning is no longer fully possible In short the book presents a challenge to those who take it as given that second language learning is inevitably different in its essential nature from language acquisition in the childhood years and that second language knowledge acquired beyond the critical period is in all circumstances and in all respects doomed to fossilize at a non native like level Learning Strategies in Second Language Acquisition
