

Literature's Perpetuum Mobile, or A Few Words on Self-Referentiality

Joanna Grądział-Wójcik

Autotematyzm (hereafter "self-referentiality") belongs to the particular type of concept in literary theory that, created by one thinker, evolved in scholarly thought and in the course of its development through new contributions and polemics from others, came to define its own history. The term was proposed by Artur Sandauer, who refined its meaning in three works written over twenty years: Konstruktywny nihilizm (Constructive Nihilism) in 1947, "O ewolucji sztuki narracyjnej w XX wieku" (On the Evolution of Narrative Art in the Twentieth Century) in 1956, and Samobójstwo Mithrydatesa (Mithrydates' Suicide) in 1967.¹ Sandauer traced the problem of self-referentiality from Romantic irony and Byronic auto-irony, following its transposition from the nineteenth century novel in verse to early twentieth century prose, its transformation from an extemporaneous device into a technique of composition whose purpose was to highlight the act of narration and thematize the process of how a story is told. Sandauer simultaneously linked the origins of self-referentiality in modern prose with the secularization of art, the idea of progress and the potentializing of the creative personality. Understood in this way, self-referentiality was both a reaction to the naturalistic artistic current of the nineteenth century and a response to the actual practice of writers, especially avant-garde writers, who were experimenting with form and seeking new means of expression. Sandauer cited such works as Karol Irzykowski's Pafuza,² André Gide's Les faux-monnayeurs (The Counterfeiters) and the poetry of Paul Valéry. He employed

[Translator's note: "Self-referentiality" is, to say the least, a very approximate equivalent. I am indebted to, and strongly recommend, Dieter De Bruyn's effort to deal with the term Autotematyzm in his paper "The Problem of Autotematyzm in Polish Literary Criticism, or How to Immobilize a Perpetuum Mobile of Nothingness" in Perspectives on Slavic Literatures, Proceedings of the First International Perspectives on Slavic Literature Conference, D.S. Dunaher and K. Van Heckeboom, eds., Amsterdam 2004, pp. 127-129. T. D. W.]

² Translator's note: the title of this work is highly ambiguous and multi-layered; following the English-language critical tradition (see C.T. Sea, "Karol Irzykowski's Pafuza: A Guide book to the Future" in SEEL, Vol. 17, No. 3, 1973), I have refrained from trying to translate it. T.D.W.

Seeing and Saying Detlev Gohrbandt, Bruno von Lutz, 1998 Transcultural English Studies Frank

Schulze-Engler, Sissy Helff, 2009 What is most strikingly new about the transcultural is its sudden ubiquity Following in the wake of previous concepts in cultural and literary studies such as creolization hybridity and syncretism and signalling a family relationship to terms such as transnationality translocality and transmigration transcultural terminology has unobtrusively but powerfully edged its way into contemporary theoretical and critical discourse The four sections of this volume denote major areas where transcultural questions and problematics have come to the fore theories of culture and literature that have sought to account for the complexity of culture in a world increasingly characterized by globalization transnationalization and interdependence realities of individual and collective life worlds shaped by the ubiquity of phenomena and experiences relating to transnational connections and the blurring of cultural boundaries fictions in literature and other media that explore these realities negotiate the fuzzy edges of ethnic or national cultures and participate in the creation of transnational public spheres as well as transcultural imaginations and memories and finally pedagogy and didactics where earlier models of teaching other cultures are faced with the challenge of coming to terms with cultural complexity both in what is being taught and in the people it is taught to and where target cultures have become elusive The idea of locating culture and literature exclusively in the context of ethnicities or nations is rapidly losing plausibility throughout an English speaking world that has long since been multi rather than monolingual Exploring the prospects and contours of Transcultural English Studies thus reflects a set of common challenges and predicaments that in recent years have increasingly moved centre stage not only in the New Literatures in English but also in British and American studies
