when we try to give some definite meaning to the end greatest happiness If we are content to receive it as simply a very general or interpret rather abstract expression for our ideal nothing happiness need be said except to put the question which has been already asked How we came by such an ideal The difficulty arises when we attempt to apply the by showing

Moral Virtue and Nature Stephen R. Brown, 2008-04-10 What make someone a good human being Is there an objective answer to this question an answer that can be given in naturalistic terms For ages philosophers have attempted to develop some sort of naturalistic ethics Against ethical naturalism however notable philosophers have contended that such projects are impossible due to the existence of some sort of gap between facts and values Others have suggested that teleology upon which many forms of ethical naturalism depend is an outdated metaphysical concept This book argues that a good human being is one who has those traits the possession of which enables someone to achieve those ends natural to beings like us Thus the answer to the question of what makes a good human being is given in terms both objective and naturalistic The author shows that neither is ought gaps nor objections concerning teleology pose insurmountable problems for naturalistic virtue ethics This work is a much needed contribution to the ongoing debate about ethical theory and ethical virtue

Ethical Naturalism and the Problem of Normativity David Copp, 2024 We all have ethical beliefs such as the belief that torture is wrong Ethical beliefs purport to guide our behaviour rather than merely to describe the world and this creates a puzzle What could possibly make some of these beliefs be true Ethical realists hold that there are ethical facts that make some of them true Ethical naturalists contend that these are ordinary natural facts facts that are similar in all relevant respects to physical ones This idea has seemed especially problematic How could it be that any ordinary natural fact has the kind of normativity the action guiding nature that our ethical beliefs point to David Copp answers these puzzles and argues surprisingly that ethical naturalism is better positioned to explain the nature of normativity than its alternatives

Deontology Stephen Darwell, 2002-11-08 Deontology brings together some of the most significant philosophical work on ethics presenting canonical essays on core questions in moral philosophy Edited and introduced by Stephen Darwall these readings are essential for anyone interested in normative theory With a helpful introduction by Stephen Darwall examines key topics in deontological moral theory Includes seven essays which respond to the classic sources Includes classic excerpts by key figures such as Kant Richard Price and W D Ross and recent reactions to this work by philosophers including Robert Nozick Thomas Nagel Stephen Darwall Judith Thomson Frances Kamm Warren Quinn and Christine Korsgaard

Normativity and Naturalism Peter Schaber, 2013-05-02 At the centre of the metaethical debate that took off from G E Moore s Principia Ethica 1903 was his critique of ethical naturalism While Moore s own arguments against ethical naturalism find little acceptance these days an alternative ground for thinking that ethical properties and facts could not be natural has gained prominence No natural account can be given of normativity This collection contains original essays from both sides of the debate Representing a wide range of metaethical views the authors develop diverse accounts of normativity and discuss
