Devore, 2006 In the life of a person there are probably no events outside influences or genetic characteristics even approaching the significance of the broad category of acts and actions called parent child relations These include decisions and actions and lack thereof from the first day of life and sometimes throughout the life span They include learning by example schooling disciplining coping skills behavioural practices eating habits communication skills conflict management and a plethora of other actions This book presents new research in this dynamic field Parent-child Relations Throughout Life Karl Pillemer, Kathleen McCartney, 2013-09-05 The study of parent child relationships has long been of interest to behavioral scientists both for its theoretical importance and for its practice and policy implications There are however certain limitations to the knowledge in this area First research on parents and children is spread throughout a number of disciplines and as a consequence is not well integrated Further there has been little dialogue among researchers concerned with parents of young children and those interested in middle aged and elderly parents and their offspring The present volume predicates the notion that there is considerable similarity in the issues explored by researchers on different points of the life course Contributions by leading scholars in psychology sociology and anthropology are organized into four sections each of which contains a treatment of at least two stages in the life course The sections cover attachment in early childhood and in later life life course transitions relationships within families and the influence of social structural factors on parent child relations Although the chapters make important contributions to basic research and theory many also deal with issues of public concern such as day care maternal employment gay and lesbian relationships and care of the elderly

Handbook of Dynamics in Parent-Child Relations Leon Kuczynski,2003 This handbook provides an interdisciplinary perspective on theory research and methodology on dynamic processes in parent child relations It focuses on cognitive behavioural and relational processes that govern immediate parent child interactions and long term relationships

New Developments in Parent-child Relations Dorothy M. Devore,2006 In the life of a person there are probably no events outside influences or genetic characteristics even approaching the significance of the broad category of acts and actions called parent child relations These include decisions and actions and lack thereof from the first day of life and sometimes throughout the life span They include learning by example schooling disciplining coping skills behavioural practices eating habits communication skills conflict management and a plethora of other actions This book presents new research in this dynamic field

Gay and Lesbian Parenting Fiona Tasker,Jerry J. Bigner,2008-04-14 Over the past 30 years research on gay and lesbian parents has produced findings that challenge deeply rooted beliefs in child psychology about the processes through which parents influence the development of their children Gay and Lesbian Parenting New Directions builds on this important research with a detailed multidisciplinary examination of established knowledge and emerging information In addition to evaluating already substantiated findings this innovative collection marks a turning point in the field by showcasing a new wave of research that examines the dynamics of same sex parenting and addresses questions about newly emerging concerns such as the consequences of different routes to same sex parenthood and the effects of social perceptions on gay and lesbian family life

Developing Caring Relationships Among Parents, Children, Schools, and Communities Dana McDermott,2008 This book focuses on parents and teachers as adult learners who should be growing and learning along with the children in their care It lays out a theory of what parents and teachers need to care for children and themselves and then it shows how the author has assisted parents and teachers to put these theories into practice McDermott relies on stories and listening to the voices of parents teachers and children to make her case She weaves together the latest theories and research with these stories She uses narratives of actual school meetings workshops parent planning and discussion groups testimonies newsletters and research of others in the field to demonstrate applications of theory and research She fills a gap by focusing on parents from all socioeconomic backgrounds purpose of this book is to present a rather simple argument Parents thoughts about childrearing and the ways in which they interact with children to achieve particular parenting or developmental goals are culturally determined Within any culture children are shaped by the physical and social settings within which they live culturally regulated customs and childrearing practices and culturally based belief systems The psychological meaning attributed to any given social behavior is in large part a function of the ecological niche within which it is produced Clearly it is the case that there are some cultural universals All parents want their children to be healthy and to feel secure However healthy and unhealthy at least in the psychological sense of the term can have different meanings from culture to culture     Handbook of Social Development Vincent B. Van Hasselt, Michel Hersen, 2013-11-11 Social development over one s lifetime is a complex area that has received considerable attention in the psychological social psychological and sociological literature over the years Surprisingly however since 1969 when Rand McNally published Goslin s Handbook of Socialization no comprehensive statement of the field has appeared in book form Given the impressive data in this area that have been adduced over the last two decades we trust that our handbook will serve to fill that gap In this volume we have followed a lifespan perspective starting with the social interactions that transpire in the earliest development stages and progressing through childhood adolescence adulthood and finally one s senior years In so doing we cover a variety of issues in depth The book contains 21 chapters and is divided into five parts I Theoretical Perspectives II Infants and Toddlers III Children and Adolescents IV Adults and V The Elderly Each of the parts begins with introductory material that reviews the overall issues to be considered Many individuals have contributed to the final production of this handbook Foremost are our eminent contributors who graciously agreed to share with us their expertise We also thank our administrative and technical staff for their assistance in carrying out the day to day tasks necessary to complete such a project Finally we thank Eliot Werner Executive Editor at Plenum for his willingness to publish and for his tolerance for the delays inevitable in the development of a large handbook     Out in Psychology

 Victoria Clarke, Elizabeth Peel, 2007-04-04 There has been a recent explosion of interest in Lesbian Gay Bisexual and Trans Perspective Psychology amongst students and academics and this interest is predicted to continue to rise Recent media debates on subjects such as same sex marriage have fuelled interest in LGBTQ perspectives This edited collection showcases the latest thinking in LGBTQ psychology The book has 21 chapters covering subjects such as same sex parenting outing young LGBTQ people sport learning disabilities lesbian and gay identities etc The book has an international focus with contributors from UK US Canada Australia and New Zealand     International Conference on Social Science and Management ICSSM 2014
