Parting Is All We Know Of Heaven:

Dickinson Emily Dickinson, Helen Vendler, 2010-09-07 The unrivaled doyenne of close reading offers an interpretive introduction to Emily Dickinson's brilliant enigmatic verse. In commentaries accompanying 150 selected poems, Helen Vendler explores Dickinson's major thematic preoccupations while highlighting the poet's startling imagination and the ingenuity of her linguistic invention. The Unlikely Allies (House of Winslow Book #36) Gilbert Morris, 2005-10-01 House of Winslow Book 36 Mallory Anne Winslow, daughter of missionaries in Africa, follows God's call to carry the Gospel to the Lapps in the Arctic. But her work is interrupted when Norway is invaded by the Germans. Mallory joins the Resistance Movement and is ordered by her superior to make Derek Raeder, aide to the Nazi colonel, fall in love with her so she can report the Nazi's plans. When the colonel discovers she is a spy, he orders his aide to arrest her. Will Derek follow the colonel's orders or his heart?

Robert Frost and the New England Renaissance George Monteiro, 2021-05-11 A poem is best read in the light of all the other poems ever written. So said Robert Frost in instructing readers on how to achieve poetic literacy. George Monteiro's newest book follows that dictum to enhance our understanding of Frost's most valuable poems by demonstrating the ways in which they circulate among the constellations of great poems and essays of the New England Renaissance. Monteiro reads Frost's own poetry not against all the other poems ever written but in the light of poems and essays by his precursors, particularly Emerson, Thoreau, and Dickinson. Familiar poems such as "Mending Wall," "After Apple Picking," "Birches," "Stopping by Woods on a Snowy Evening," "The Road Not Taken," and "Mowing," as well as lesser-known poems such as "The Draft Horse," "The Ax Helve," "The Bonfire," "Dust of Snow," "A Cabin in the Clearing," "The Cocoon," and "Pod of the Milkweed," are renewed by fresh and original readings that show why and how these poems pay tribute to their distinguished sources. Frost's insistence that Emerson and Thoreau were the giants of nineteenth-century American letters is confirmed by the many poems variously influenced that derive from them. His attitude toward Emily Dickinson, however, was more complex and sometimes less generous. In his twenties, he molded his poetry after hers. But later, after he joined the faculty of Amherst College, he found her to be less a benefactor than a competitor. Monteiro tells a two-stranded tale of attraction, imitation, and homage countered by competition, denigration, and grudging acceptance of Dickinson's greatness as a woman poet. In a daring move, he composes out of Frost's own words and phrases the talk on Emily Dickinson that Frost was never invited to give. In showing how Frost's work converses with that of his predecessors, Monteiro gives us a new Frost whose poetry is seen as the culmination of an intensely felt New England literary experience.

All We Need of Hell Rika Lesser, 1995 Rika Lesser through composes her books of poems; they are not albums but unities. They are meant to be read in one sitting and can be fearfully intense. In Etruscan Things, she followed the circular map of the Etruscan heavens. In All We Need of Hell, she seeks to escape the locked boxes of psychiatric wards and medical categorizations. When she succeeds, and she must, it is through art to life. These poems will inevitably be compared to those by other poets who have struggled with depressive illnesses. Rarely, however, does a poet address such topics as illness mental illness suicide and death as singlemindedly as Lesser does here A Concordance to the Poems of Emily Dickinson S. P. From Empedocles to Wittgenstein Anthony Kenny, 2008-09-04 From Empedocles to Wittgenstein is a collection of fifteen historical essays in philosophy written by Sir Anthony Kenny in the early years of the 21st century In the main they are concerned with four of the great philosophers whom he most esteems namely Plato Aristotle Aquinas and Wittgenstein The author is not only one of the most respected historians of philosophy and possibly the widest ranging but also one of the most successful at writing on the subject for a broad readership In this volume he presents scholarly explorations of some themes which caught his interest as he worked on his acclaimed four volume New History of Western Philosophy The ^AOxford Dictionary of American Quotations Hugh Rawson, Margaret Miner, 2005-12-15 With nearly 6 000 quotations arranged historically and annotated extensively you'll know not just who said what but get the full story behind the quote Follow any of the more than five hundred topics from Abolition to Zeal and you will get a nutshell history of what great and not so great Americans had to say about each one Quotations are arranged chronologically in each topic allowing the reader to trace patterns of thought over time Of Death and Grief S. T. Kimbrough, 2018-01-30 This little book of poems reveals how the author has dealt with the grief that accompanied the death of his wife of fifty nine years The poems are a conversation on the journey through the grieving process which perhaps has no end Yes they are permeated with a deep faith that there is more to life than merely living and dying At the same time they are honest responses to how painful it is to lose your life partner Many of the poems are autobiographical about first encounter marriage life and love together and death The actual physical occurrence of death can be readily described by physicians but its emotional and life effect is much more illusory Without question these poems are simply one person s response to death and grief They provide no decisive answers on how to respond to either but if one s open and honest response can help others address such challenges so be it The goal of the author is not to provide steps for the grieving rather through poetry to share the thoughts of the heart and mind as they grapple with death and grief He avers that through the very difficult process of grieving which may never completely end love alone is the key to healing and renewal
