benefit from doing several of the drills to develop as hockey players now and later The emphasis in the hockey drills is on skating and even though we are talking about the younger hockey players there are match like elements built into many of the practices in a basic format There are also many simpler competition elements in the drills because that is what it will ultimately be about in the matches to compete on the ice first to the puck as a first basic element Two other important elements covered by the hockey drills are the first steps towards an interaction in the form of movement and passes and of course what we strive for with each attack to shoot to score a goal
