Patents, Invention, and Economic Change Jacob Schmookler, 1972 Patents, Invention, and Economic Change Jacob Schmookler, 1972 The Democratization of Invention B. Zorina Khan, 2005-09-12 This book first published in 2005 examines the evolution and impact of American intellectual property rights during the long nineteenth century Invention and Economic Growth Jacob Schmookler, 1966 Analysis of effects of economic growth on technological changes and inventions covers patents innovations in various industries the role of intellectual stimulus productivity advance and the extent of the market etc Comprehensive statistical tables and list of inventions pp 217 to 328 Economics of Technological Change I J. Lesourne, H. Sonnenschein, An Economic Theory of Technological Change Trevor J. O. Dick, 1978 The Economics of the Patent System E. Kaufer, 2012-11-12 How effective are patents for stimulating economic activity This volume provides an overview of existing national patent systems and suggests a revised system Invention and the Rise of Technocapitalism Luis Suarez-Villa, 2000 In the context of the historic evolution of capitalism Suarez Villa social ecology U of California Irvine explores the advent of a form of market capitalism rooted in invention and the development of new technologies He examines the infrastructure that supports invention and the relationship of technocapitalism with science corporate business and government Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc Portland OR The Economic Impact of the Patent System C. T. Taylor, Aubrey Silberston, 1973-12-06 Patents Marc Baudry, Béatrice Dumont, 2017-11-29 The patent system is criticized today by some practitioners and economists In fact there is a partial disconnection between patent demographics and productivity gains but also the development of actors who do not innovate and who develop business models that their detractors equate with a capture of annuities or a dangerous commodification of patents This book provides a less Manichaean view of the position of patents in the system of contemporary innovation It first recalls that these criticisms are not new before arguing that if these criticisms have been revived it is because of a partial shift from an integrated innovation system to a much more fragmented and open system This shift accompanied the promotion of a more competitive economy The authors show that this movement is coherent with a more intensive use of patents but also one that is more focused on their signal function than on their function of direct monetary incentive to innovation Patents, Citations, and Innovations Adam B. Jaffe, Manuel Trajtenberg, 2002 A study of how patents and citation data can serve empirical research on innovation and technological change The Battle over Patents Stephen H. Haber, Naomi R. Lamoreaux, 2021-08-06 An examination of how the patent system works imperfections and all to incentivize innovation Do patents facilitate or frustrate innovation Lawyers economists and politicians who have staked out strong positions in this debate often attempt to validate their claims by invoking the historical record but they frequently get the history wrong The Battle over Patents gets it right Bringing together thoroughly researched essays from prominent historians and social scientists this volume traces the long and contentious history of patents and examines how they have worked in practice Editors Stephen H Haber and Naomi R Lamoreaux show that patent systems are the result of contending interests at different points in production chains battling over economic surplus The larger the potential surplus the more extreme are the efforts of contending parties now and in the past to search out generate and exploit any and all sources of friction Patent systems as human creations are therefore necessarily ridden with imperfections This volume explores these shortcomings and explains why despite all the debate historically US style patent systems still dominate all other methods of encouraging inventive activity Economic Development, the Family, and Income Distribution Simon Kuznets, 2002-09-12 This is a collection of essays by Simon Kuznets winner of the 1971 Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Sciences published posthumously It represents the primary concerns of his research at a late phase of his career as well as themes from his earlier work The first four chapters deal with modern economic growth Chapters five to seven introduce the main theme of the remainder of the volume interrelations between demographic change and income inequality Chapters eight to ten draw on a wider set of data to make comparisons of income inequality among societies at widely different levels of development Chapter eleven returns to data for the United States to develop more fully the importance of differing childbearing patterns for income inequality In the introduction Professor Richard Easterlin discusses the relationship of the essays to the balance of Kuznets's writings In the afterword Professor Robert Fogel discusses the methodologies favoured by Kuznets Current Projects on Economic and Social Implications of Scientific Research and Development, 1965 Patents, Invention, and Economic Change. Data and Selected Papers Zvi Griliches, 1972 Technological and Social Factors in Long Term Fluctuations Massimo Di Matteo, Richard M. Goodwin, Alessandro Vercelli, 2012-12-06 1 The Idea behind the workshop was that of calling attention to the necessity of studying long term tendencies In economic growth We believe that actual growth processes In capitalistic economies are not smooth phenomena and also that the evolution of the economy Is characterized by long term fluctuations as well as by trade cycles It Is now common place to argue that this point of view was revived after 1973 In consequence of the economic difficulties experienced by Industrialized countries while It has a much older origin as Its roots can be pushed back at least to the Great Depression of the 1930 s In preparing this workshop we selected two main approaches as reflected In the title of this book that have been proposed In the last ten years to deal with the causes of long term fluctuations namely the technological or neo Schumpeterian Approach and the social approach What follows Is simply a rough characterization of the existing theoretical positions and It Is not meant to be an exhaustive one The Interested reader will Immediately see that there are many differentiated positions by looking at the arguments contained In each contribution Patents and the Measurement of International Competitiveness Kingston, W. Scally, K., 2014-05-14 This highly original book represents a major advance in the use of patents to compare countries technological competitiveness It tabulates and analyses 280 000 United States patents from countries across the world over a ten year period Specifically these patents were granted to not for profit entities mainly universities and research institutes firms with no more than 500 employees or to individual inventors For each of these groups the book provides statistics and discussion on how long patents are kept in force the extent to which they are cited and how far inventions made in different countries are in fact owned in the United States

America by Design David F. Noble,2013-01-23 Hailed a significant contribution by The New York Times David Noble s book America by Design describes the factors that have shaped the history of scientific technology in the United States Since the beginning technology and industry have been undeniably intertwined and Noble demonstrates how corporate capitalism has not only become the driving force behind the development of technology in this country but also how scientific research particularly within universities has been dominated by the corporations who fund it who go so far as to influence the education of the engineers that will one day create the technology to be used for capitalist gain Noble reveals that technology often thought to be an independent science has always been a means to an end for the men pulling the strings of Corporate America and it was these men that laid down the plans for the design of the modern nation today
