Knowing the Way (Third Edition) Edward Kleinguetl, 2025-06-18 A powerful spiritual roadmap rooted in truth tradition and timeless hope Relativism secularism sectarianism wokeness political correctness increased hostility towards Christian values and the Church desertion by the flock does anyone else feel like we have become strangers in a strange land Our world has gone bonkers Today we live in a society that has largely forgotten God and being separated from him the results are evident Increasing restlessness selfishness depression despair hopelessness and nihilism This is not the life God desires for us If we find ourselves lost or separated from the Source of Life we need to find our way back But how Jesus told us I am the way and the truth and the life No one comes to the Father except through me John 14 6 It's time to reexamine how to attain the abundant life that Jesus promised us Happiness and fulfillment in this life and the life to come We do not need to overthink it childlike simplicity Cf Mark 10 15 We just need to return to the principles of our faith the right faith being a living relationship with the ever living God Oh Christian who has gotten drunk on love of the world Sober up while there is still time and look for the heavenly blessings that God promised to those who love him lest you seek them later but do not receive them St Tikhon of Zadonsk

Redeeming the Southern Family Scott Stephan, 2010-01-25 In the years leading up to the Civil War southern evangelical denominations moved from the fringes to the mainstream of the American South Scott Stephan argues that female Baptists Methodists and Presbyterians played a crucial role in this transformation While other scholars have pursued studies of southern evangelicalism in the context of churches meetinghouses and revivals Stephan looks at the domestic rituals over which southern women had increasing authority from consecrating newborns to God's care to ushering dying kin through life's final stages. Laymen and clergymen alike celebrated the contributions of these pious women to the experience and expansion of evangelicalism across the South. This acknowledged domestic authority allowed some women to take on more public roles in the conversion and education of southern youth within churches and academies although always in the name of family and always cloaked in the language of Christian self-abnegation. At the same time, however, women's work in the name of domestic devotion often put them at odds with slaves, children, or husbands in their households who failed to meet their religious expectations and thereby jeopardized evangelical hopes of heavenly reunification of the family. Stephan uses the journals and correspondence of evangelical women from across the South to understand the interconnectedness of women's personal family and public piety. Rather than seeing evangelical women as entirely oppressed or resigned to the limits of their position in a patriarchal slave society, Stephan seeks to capture a sense of what agency was available to women through their moral authority.

Conflicting Paths Harvey J. Graff, 1995. We grow up so simple it just seems to happen and yet there are endless variations in the way we do it. What part does culture play in the process? How much do politics and economics have to do with it? As the nation has matured, have the ways people grow up changed too? This book traces the many paths to adulthood that Americans have pursued over time. Spanning more than two centuries of intense transformation in the lives of individuals and the life of a nation, Conflicting Paths is an innovative history of growing up in America. Harvey J. Graff, a distinguished social historian, mines more than five hundred personal narratives for what they can tell us about the passage from childhood to maturity. Drawing on diaries, memoirs, autobiographies, and letters, he builds a penetrating, complex firsthand account of how childhood, adolescence, and youth have been experienced and understood as functions of familial and social relations, as products of biology and physiology, and as cultural and political constructs. These first-person testimonies cross the lines of time and space, gender, and class, ethnicity, age, and race. In these individual stories and the larger story they constitute, Graff exposes the way social change, including institutional developments and shifting attitudes, expectations, and policy, and personal experience intertwine in the process of growing up. Together, these narratives form a challenging, subtle guide to historical experiences and to the epochal remaking of growing up. The most socially inclusive and historically extensive of any such research, Graff's work constitutes an important chapter in the story of the family, the formation of modern society, and the complex interweaving of young people, tradition, and change.
