Chronic Respiratory Illness Simon J. Williams, 2004-11-11 Chronic obstructive airways disease (COAD), bronchitis, emphysema and chronic asthma is a major medical, psychological, social and economic problem. Breathlessness is one of the most distressing and disabling symptoms of COAD and it has long been apparent that the condition results in impaired quality of life. Drawing upon sociological and psychological sources and his own detailed research in this area, Simon Williams sensitively portrays the meaning, experience and impact of COAD. Sufferers and their families' own accounts are used to portray the various stages and aspects of COAD, ranging from the experience of symptoms and the management of medical regimens to the practical problems it creates in daily life and the more diffuse and intangible ways in which it impinges on social and family life. He also provides a comprehensive review of the psychosocial literature and concludes by discussing some of the policy implications for health care professionals

Psychiatric Diagnosis Juan E. Mezzich, Yutaka Honda, Marianne C. Kastrup, 2012-12-06 Advances in the standardization, precision and thoroughness of psychiatric diagnosis are being supplemented with attention to personalized or ideographic descriptive approaches. This promises not only to enhance the clinician's understanding of a case but to allow a fuller and more effective use of the evolving range of therapeutic possibilities. To reflect these developments, the Section on Classification, Diagnostic Assessment and Nomenclature of the World Psychiatric Association has prepared this volume, which is organized around five prominent themes in contemporary psychiatric diagnosis: major regional perspectives; ICD-10 comprehensive diagnosis through the multiaxial model; treatment planning and organization of health services; the role and challenges of psychiatric diagnosis in primary health care

The Indiana School Journal, 1890 The Glaucoma Book Paul N. Schacknow, John R. Samples, 2010-06-10 Putting together a comprehensive multiauthored text is a daunting task. However, the benefits may justify the effort. Such is the case with regards to the present Glaucoma Book. It is not likely that many ophthalmologists or others will decide at the end of a busy day to pour themselves a cocktail and settle into a comfortable chair with this large tome in hand with the intent of reading it from start to finish. A pity. It would make several enjoyable and profitable days of good reading. The text starts with comments by an individual who is strongly grounded in the fundamentals of being a good physician. Ivan Goldberg has used his brilliance, his wide international experiences and knowledge and his commitment to assuring that physicians know their craft to provide a penetrating perspective on ophthalmology today and tomorrow. The Glaucoma Book ends with commentaries by the editors. John Samples, a true physician scientist and Paul Schacknow, an experienced community based clinician. Samples' essay 'What Really Causes Glaucoma' nicely describes the leading theories underlying the cell biology of glaucoma. In 'What Do We Know Now? What Do We Need to Know About Glaucoma?' Schacknow offers an essay on some of the controversial ideas raised within the book and speculates on future research.
