Bevir, R. A. W. Rhodes, 2010-04-08 The State as Cultural Practice offers a fully worked out account of the authors distinctive interpretive approach to political science. It challenges the new institutionalism, probably the most significant present day strand in both American and British political science. It moves away from such notions as bringing the state back in, path dependency and modernist empiricism. Instead, Bevir and Rhodes argue for an anti-foundational analysis, ethnographic and historical methods and a decentred approach that rejects any essentialist definition of the state and espouses the idea of politics as cultural practice. The book has three aims: to develop an anti-foundational theory of the state, to develop a new research agenda around the topics of rule, rationalities and resistance by exploring empirical shifts and debates about the changing nature of the state, to show how anti-foundational theory leads us to see them differently. Bevir and Rhodes argue for the idea of the stateless state or the state as meaning in action. So the state is neither monolithic nor a causal agent. It consists solely of the contingent actions of specific individuals of diverse beliefs about the public sphere, about authority and power, which are constructed differently in contending traditions. Continuity and change are products of people inheriting traditions and modifying them in response to dilemmas. A decentred approach explores the limits to the state and seeks to develop a more diverse view of state authority and its exercise. In short, political scientists need to bring people back in to the study of the state.

Postmodernity and the Fragmentation of Welfare John Carter, 2012-10-12 Postmodern ideas have been vastly influential in the social sciences and beyond. However, their impact on the study of social policy has been minimal. Postmodernity and the Fragmentation of Welfare analyses the potential for a postmodern or cultural turn in welfare as it treats postmodernity as an evolving canon from the seminal works of Baudrillard, Foucault and Lyotard through to recent theories of the risk society. Already disorientated by globalisation, new technologies and the years of new right ascendancy, welfare faces a significant challenge in the postmodern. It suggests that rather than universality and state provision, the new social policy will be consumerised and fragmented, a welfare state of ambivalence. With contributions from authors coming from a variety of fields offering very different perspectives on postmodernity and welfare, Postmodernity and the Fragmentation of Welfare also keeps social policy's intellectual inheritance in view. By exploring ways in which theorisations of postmodernity might improve understanding of welfare issues in the 1990s and assessing the relevance of theories of diversity and difference to mainstream and critical social policy traditions, this book will be an essential text for all students of social policy, social administration, social work and sociology.
