Author's name: Bohan Li

Peer reviewer's name: Kaelan Liu

I. Citation and Source Selection

1. Source Selection: Describe how well you think the sources fit the topic. Consider aspects such as credibility, variety, and the representation of multiple perspectives. How could the selection be improved, if at all?

The sources align well with the topic of online misogyny, covering credible feminist perspectives. Including additional viewpoints, such as legal or policy-focused sources, could provide a more balanced approach.

2. Citation Feedback: Reflect on the citation style used in each entry. What did you notice about the formatting, and how effectively does it follow APA style guidelines? Offer any suggestions on specific entries that might benefit from adjustments.

Most citations follow APA style, but some need more details (e.g., full author names).

3. Source Balance and Credibility: In what ways do the sources reflect balanced perspectives on the topic? How might the author enhance the range of viewpoints to provide a more comprehensive understanding of the problem?

While the sources are relevant, they mainly reflect feminist viewpoints. Adding perspectives on how online misogyny affects broader communities or discussions from policy experts would offer a fuller picture.

II. Summary and Evaluation Quality

1. Clarity of Summaries: Reflect on the clarity and completeness of each summary. How well do the summaries capture the main ideas of the sources? Share specific examples of effective summaries and areas where more clarity or detail would help.
