Pulp and paper manufacture: volume 1. Preparation & treatment of wood pulp J N. Stephenson, 1950 Paper and Composites from Agro-Based Resources Roger M. Rowell, Judith Rowell, 1996-10-15 Sustainable development is an important concept underlying many of today's renewable resource policies. Agro-based resources such as wood make up a significant portion of modern renewable resources. While probably the most familiar example, wood is only one type of agromass in the vast world of photosynthetic resources. Paper and Composites from Agro Based Resources explores the great number of options available for producing paper and composites. Using sound ecosystem management principles, the book discusses strategies for obtaining fiber from plant-based resources including agricultural crops and residues, grasses and recycled agro-based resources in addition to wood. Business Service Bulletin, 1955 Wood Fibres for Papermaking Maria Cristina Area, 2014-05-06. Firs and pines dominated the global picture of the raw materials for the paper industry until the 1950s. At that time, the interest in introducing new species, mostly hardwoods, led the researchers to intensify efforts to look for the fibrous characteristics and their combinations that could represent the relationship between fibres, pulp and paper. The pulp and paper industry has shown, mainly in the last two decades, a strong North-South displacement. This is to a large extent due to the favourable climate which promotes the development of the trees. Similarly, the paper fibres have gone from being almost exclusively softwoods from natural forests of the Northern Hemisphere, cold regions such as spruce and fir, to fast-growing species of short fibres such as eucalyptus and willow and poplar hybrids from plantations. These new species that begin to dominate the paper panorama not only differ from classic ones in fibre length but they present particular characteristics like large amounts of juvenile wood, different fibrillar angle and so on, because trees are used increasingly at younger age. This leads us to question whether the old paradigms concerning the relationships between fibres, characteristics and pulp properties are still valid or should be reviewed and updated, in which case the basic fibre parameters, their influence in pulping and refining and their impact on paper quality should be redefined. To establish the state of the art on the topic, this book analyses the publications of the last decade to verify the morphological characteristics of the fibres which are nowadays considered relevant. Relatively recent data were surveyed because of the continuous changes that occur in the species by genetic improvement. Paper Chemistry and Technology Monica Ek, Göran Gellerstedt, Gunnar Henriksson, 2009-12-15. This four-volume set covers the entire spectrum of pulp and paper chemistry and technology from starting material to processes and products including market demands. This work is essential for all students of wood science and a useful reference for those working in the pulp and paper industry or on the chemistry of renewable resources. Volume 3 provides an overview of paper production and the ways in which the chemistry of starting materials and processes influence its quality and properties. The work treats fundamental properties of the fibre wall and the consolidation of fibres during pressing and drying, surface chemistry of fibres and their influence on the interaction between fibres, paper and other materials mechanisms behind the adsorption of polyelectrolytes to fibres and fillers acid and alkaline sizing of paper basic fluid mechanical behavior of fibre suspensions web forming web pressing and web drying in a modern paper machine calendering and coating of paper Handbook of Pulping and Papermaking Christopher J. Biermann,1996-08-01 In its Second Edition Handbook of Pulping and Papermaking is a comprehensive reference for industry and academia The book offers a concise yet thorough introduction to the process of papermaking from the production of wood chips to the final testing and use of the paper product The author has updated the extensive bibliography providing the reader with easy access to the pulp and paper literature The book emphasizes principles and concepts behind papermaking detailing both the physical and chemical processes A comprehensive introduction to the physical and chemical processes in pulping and papermaking Contains an extensive annotated bibliography Includes 12 pages of color plates Paper Trade Journal ,1924 Pulp and Paper Magazine of Canada ,1923 Canadian Chemical Journal ,1921 Canadian Chemistry and Metallurgy ,1921
