Not only are more programmes being provided with more people studying for master's degrees but the nature of the degree itself is changing: it has become essentially a professional degree. In response to market forces a variety of approaches to curriculum design, teaching, learning and assessment have evolved. This text considers evidence and experiences of academics in South Africa, the USA, Australia and Britain, creating an overall picture of developments accompanied by a set of practical and conceptual problems.

The 1994 High School Transcript Study Tabulations Stanley Legum, National Center for Education Statistics, Westat, Inc., 1997 The 1994 High School Transcript Study (HSTS) provides the Department of Education and other policymakers with information about current course offerings and students' course taking patterns in the nation's secondary schools. One objective was to determine changes in course offering and selection patterns since the previous studies in 1982, 1987 and 1990. Another objective was to compare course taking patterns to results from the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP), an assessment of educational achievement nationwide. In 1994 transcripts were collected for more than 25 000 students who graduated from high school that year. These students were from 340 schools that participated in the NAEP. Information in this report documents a significant increase since 1982 in the percentage of graduates completing curricula recommended by the National Commission on Excellence in Education. As of 1994 over 25% of high school graduates are completing programs satisfying the Commission's recommendations for college bound graduates and nearly one third are completing the Commission's core curriculum. Chapters 1, 2 and 3 of this report contain highlights of the study results, descriptions of the studies from 1982 through 1994, an introduction to the tables of data, a brief description of subject taxonomy, a discussion of the comparability of samples in the studies and directions for testing the significance of differences reported in the tables. Appendix A contains tables of study data and Appendix B lists study codes for each category of data. Contains 121 tables.
