An Assessment of the Need for Native Seeds and the Capacity for Their Supply National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Committee on National Statistics, Board on Agriculture and Natural Resources, Committee on an Assessment of Native Seed Needs and Capacities, 2020-11-29

Across the United States millions of acres of land have been so disturbed by human activities or severe climate events that significant portions of their native plant communities have been lost and their ecosystems have been seriously compromised Restoring impaired ecosystems requires a supply of diverse native plant seeds that are well suited to the climates soils and other living species of the system Native seeds are also in demand for applications in urban land management roadside maintenance conservation agriculture and other restorative activities that take into account the connection between native plant communities and the increasingly urgent need for resilient landscapes

Given the varied climatic and environmental niches of the more than 17 000 native plant species of the United States supplying the desired seed types and species mixes for this wide range of activities is a challenge

As the first phase of a nationwide analysis of the full scope of needs for native plant seeds this interim report describes the participants in the native plant seed supply chain makes preliminary observations and proposes an information gathering plan for the second phase of the assessment
