Seeing Voices New Zealand Poets Reading:

Global Fragments, 2007-01-01 While the world seems to be getting ever smaller and globalization has become the ubiquitous buzz word regionalism and fragmentation also abound This might be due to the fact that far from being the alleged production of cultural homogeneity the global is constantly re defined and altered through the local This tension pervading much of contemporary culture has an obvious special relevance for the new varieties of English and the literature published in English world wide Postcolonial literatures exist at the interface of English as a hegemonic medium and its many national regional and local competitors that transform it in the new English literatures Thus any exploration of a globalization of cultures has to take into account the fact that culture is a complex field characterized by hybridization plurality and difference But while global or transnational cultures may allow for a new cosmopolitanism that produces ever changing fluid identities they do not give rise to an egalitarian global village an asymmetry between centre and periphery remains largely intact albeit along new parameters The essays collected in this volume offer readings of literary theoretical and filmic texts from the postcolonial world These texts are read as attempts to articulate the global with the local from a perspective of immersion in the actual diversity of life worlds focusing on such issues as consumption identity politics and modes of affiliation In this sense they are global fragments locally refracted figurations of an experience of world wide interconnectedness

Simply by Sailing in a New Direction Terry Sturm, 2017-09-29 Allen Curnow 1911 2001 was at the time of his death regarded as one of the greatest of all poets writing in English For seventy years from Valley of Decision 1933 to The Bells of Saint Babel s 2001 Curnow s poetry was always on the move from his early approaches to New Zealand identity and myth to later work concerned with the philosophical encounter between word and world Curnow also played a major role in New Zealand life as editor critic commentator and anthologist as well as a much loved writer of light verse under the penname of Whim Wham In his later years he acquired an impressive international reputation winning the Commonwealth Prize for Poetry and the Queen s Gold Medal for Poetry Throughout his lifetime Allen Curnow revised selected and collected his poetry in various ways For the first time this collection brings together all of the poems that Curnow collected in his lifetime grouped in their original volumes The notes reproduce Curnow s comments on individual poems and include relevant editorial guidance This is the definitive collection of work by New Zealand s most distinguished poet
